LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — As part of a tour of town hall meetings conducted across the country, Terry Stokes, chief executive officer of the National Cattlemen's Beef Association (NCBA), traveled to two locations in Pennsylvania — his first time in the commonwealth — this week.

Tuesday evening's meeting at the Lancaster Farm and Home Center drew 40 producers and allied industry representatives. Forty participants also attended Wednesday's meeting in Friedens, Somerset County.

The effort to "put a stethoscope to the industry" and understand issues facing cattle producers, yet also promote understanding of the NCBA, has taken Stokes to 24 town hall meetings and a full agenda until Christmas.

Stokes, who took over the reins as chief executive officer in March, has already visited seven or eight states. The variety of areas he has visited has helped him to see both the commonalities and differences of producers across America. "You can get a diversity of opinion going pretty quickly on a lot of different issues," he said.

Stokes grew up in west Texas, where his father founded a meat packing business in San Angelo. The family also lived on a ranch where they backgrounded cattle and owned a stocker operation outside of town.

Dynamic, Profitable Industry

"When you look at our industry's vision, which comes from the long-range plan, it talks about a dynamic and profitable beef industry. Well, dynamic it's been. I think we can say that the rate of change and the dynamic part of our industry has been there, but the profitable part is somewhat blurred," said Stokes.

He added that he has not been anywhere that he hasn't seen eco-

LAST WEEK	411	247	598	1274
LAST YEAR	376	221	1193	1022

CATTLE: Compared to Thursday, lean slaughter cows sold mostly steady on a fairly good run. Breaking and Boning cows sold mostly steady to weak, with instances of 1.00 lower. Fleshy cow receipts were fairly light, although those on hand were in very good condition. Bidding was moderate to active on all classes, and bids may have been higher on the Breaking cows had there been a stronger run. Buyer attendance was higher when compared to last Monday, which caused prices to hold fairly steady; considering bids have been several dollars lower to begin the week over the past few Mondays'. Slaughter bulls sold mostly steady to weak on continued attractive runs. Slaughter cows made up nearly 53 percent of the run.

SLAUGHTER COWS: PERCENT LEAN WEIGHT BULK LOW DRESSING Breakers 75-80 over 1400 lbs 41.25-44.25 38.00-41.50 Boners 80-85 over 1200 lbs 38.50-41.25 36.00-38.00 Lean (Hi-Yield) 85-88 over 1200 lbs 36.25-38.50 32.00-35.75 Lean 88-90 over 1000 lbs 32.25-37.50 29.50-32.00 Lean (Light-Wt) 85-90 750-1000 lbs 29.50-32.00 24.50-29.00 SLAUGHTER BULLS: Yield Grade 1 1255-2140 lbs 45.00-51.50, couple high dressers 58.50-60.00, few low dressing 42.00-43.50. Yield Grade 2 1025-2010 lbs 44.00-46.00. Bullocks: Few low Select 1-2 900-1390 lbs 44.75-49.00.

CALVES: Compared to Thursday, veal calves sold steady to weak on a very light run. Holstein bull calves sold with a weaker undertone on only moderate bidding. Buyers were in good attendance, but seemed only mildly interested in procuring calves early in the week. The bull run was made up of primarily average type stock, with bidding very sporadic at times due to the quality. Receipts were very light on the heifer supply; therefore a trend was not established. However, the light run trended with a lower undertone. There has not been enough large slaughter calves over the past few weeks to ensure an adequate market test. However, the supply was comprised of some fairly good calves, with bidding active even though buyer attendance was light.

LARGE CALVES: Good and Choice 200-300 lbs 67.00-79.00; 300-400 lbs 59.00-69.00; 400-500 lbs 56.00-63.00, fancy individual 78.00; 650-700 lbs 50.00-58.00.

VEALERS: Few Utility 70-115 lbs 11.00-17.00. RETURNED TO FARM: Holstein bulls 95-125 lbs 85.00-117.00, mostly 100.00-115.00; 90 lbs 70.00-92.00; 80-85 lbs 35.00-90.00, mostly 40.00-65.00; few 75 lbs 30.00-80.00. Few Holstein heifers 95-115 lbs 265.00-595 00. SHEEP: Compared to Thursday, all classes of sheep sold mostly steady on an increase in receipts. Buyers did not seem to be bothered by the higher numbers as bidding was fairly active.

SLAUGHTER LAMBS: Choice and Prime 2-3 40-80 lbs 100.00-135.00; 90-120 lbs 90.00-100 00.

SLAUGHTER EWES: Good and Choice Yearlings and 2 year-olds 45.00-55.00. Utility and Good 1-3 30.00-45.00. GOATS: Compared to last week, Kid goats were not tested due to a light run made up of mostly 20-40 pounders. Yearlings sold 2.00 to as much as 10.00 higher on a very good run. The yearling supply was made up of some very nice stock, especially early; where bidding was very active as buyers welcomed the increase in both quality and receipts. Nannies sold very mixed, although mostly weaker on a fairly plain run; however, due to the light Nanny supply, the top was never tested. Wethers sold steady to 11.00 higher on a very good run. Early in the sale a very fancy consignment of Wethers drew a lot of attention, and bidding was very active throughout the sale the heavier muscled supply. Billies drew energy from the Wether supply trending sharply higher. The Billie run was above average, and it was apparent buyers are still willing to pay top dollar for the heavy muscled stock. Kids: Selection 1 20-40 lbs 44.00-50.00. Selection 2 20-40 lbs 31.00-44.00. Selection 3 20-40 lbs 20.00-31.00. Yearlings: Selection 1 60-80 lbs 56.00-66.00; 80-100 lbs few 60.00-64.00. Selection 2 50-70 lbs 40.00- 45.00; 70-100 lbs 43.00-56.00; 100-140 lbs few 54.00-60.00. Selection 3 50-70 lbs 34.00-48.00, thin 24.00; 70-100 lbs 36.00-50.00. Compared to Thursday, slaughter steers sold mostly steady on Monday, only to trade with a lower undertone on Tuesday. The supply was very mixed over the two day sale which caused buying activity to be very sporadic. Buyers did show some interest in owning the High Choice and Prime stock, the only problem was the fancy types were in light supply. Although, there was an increase in receipts as nearly 400 head of steers went through the ring. Holstein steers were in relatively light supply, with most of the supply not comparable to Thursday. Fat Holstein buyers are becoming fairly rare, which is leading to uncertain demand. Slaughter heifers were in very light supply, with the few comparable groups trending with a lower undertone. Lean slaughter cows sold fully 1.00 lower on an uneven supply, with Breaking and Boning cows trending 1.00-2.00 lower. There was a good run of fleshier cows, although buyer activity was light. Due to the very light run of slaughter bulls, a trend was not established. The supply included 42 percent steers, 13 percent heifers, 43 percent cows, 2 percent bulls, with the balance feeders.

SLAUGHTER STEERS: High Choice and Prime 2-4 1215-1495 lbs 66.00-70.00. Choice 2-3 1185-1480 lbs 63.50-68.25, few high dressing Charlois-X 68.50-70.25. HOLSTEIN STEERS: Few Choice 2-3 1355-1545 lbs 54.75-55.75. Select and low Choice 2-3 1410-1505 lbs 52.00-54.00. Select 1-2 1415-1615 lbs 48.25-49.25.

SLAUGHTER HEIFERS: Choice 2-3 1165-1480 lbs 61.75-63.60. Select and low Choice 2-3 1120-1405 lbs 59.75-62.25. Heifferettes: Commercial to Choice 2-4 1165-1579 lbs 54.00-57.75.

SLAUGHTER COWS: PERCENT LEAN WEIGHT BULK LOW DRESSING Breakers 75-80 Over 1400 lbs 37.75-41.50 34.50-37.50 Boners 80-85 Over 1200 lbs 36.00-39.75 30.75-36.00 Lean (Hi-Yield) 85-88 Over 1200 lbs 33.00-36.25 29.50-32.75 Lean 88-90 Over 1000 lbs 31.00-35.00 26.50-31.00 Lean (Light-Wt) 85-90 750-1000 lbs 27.75-31.75 23.00-28.50 SLAUGHTER BULLS: Yield grade 1 1345-1995 lbs 44.50-46.50, couple high dressing 53.50-54.25, full 41.75.

CALVES: Compared to last Tuesday, veal calves sold steady to 5.00 higher on good buyer interest and an increase in receipts. Holstein bull calves suitable for special-fed veal barns sold sharply lower in inactive bidding. Buyer interest remains very light for bulls for the second week in a row. Holstein heifers sold steady to firm on a very light test. It is apparent that buyers are willing to procure heifers in the 600.00 range, although demand continues to vary due to the wavering supply. The supply included 697 head in the state graded sale, with around 96 percent of the supply returned to feed.

VEALERS: Standard and Good 85-115 lbs 25.00-40.00. Utility 45-85 lbs 15.00-25.00, lightweight 10.00-15.00. ❖ HOG MARKETS ❖

New Holland Hog Auction

NEW HOLLAND, PA
October 28, 2002
Report Supplied By Auction

HOG RECEIPTS: 519 head, last Monday 692; last year 1204.

Compared to last Monday, barrows and gilts sold fully 6.00-7.00 lower in very stagnant bidding. The auction opened up with very light buyer attendance, although even when the attendance improved later in the sale, bids did not. It was very apparent that buyers were not very interested in procuring hogs, and that they wanted to realign with the Western terminal markets. Therefore, with the Western markets quoting hogs from 23.50-26.00, prices trended sharply lower locally.

New Holland Feeder Pig Auction

NEW HOLLAND, PA
October 30, 2002
Report Supplied By USDA

Receipts: 463 Last Week: 471 Year Ago: 309

Compared to last week, feeder pigs sold sharply higher on a fairly good run. Feeder buyers are still banned from shipping pigs across the state line due to the pseudo-rabies outbreaks from 6-8 weeks ago; although local demand has picked up dramatically over the past couple of weeks. Slaughter pigs sold mixed, with 20-30 pounders trading steady to instances 12.00 higher; and all other weights trading mostly steady to instances weaker. There was a fairly decent crowd on hand for Wednesdays' high quality run, although the cold weather kept a few of the regular buyers at home. All pigs were weighed and graded on arrival and sold by the hundred weights.

National Broiler Market At A Glance

Atlanta, Ga.
October 30, 2002
Report Supplied By USDA

Trade sentiment was at least steady in the East, generally steady elsewhere. Retail demand was slow to fair with limited ad activity. Food service was light to moderate, best where fast food specials were active. Supplies of heavier weights were well balanced in the East with some premiums, but ample in the West; smaller sizes were adequate. In the parts structure, trading was mixed. Breast items were in the best balance, at time closely cleared for bone-in. Dark meat was fully sufficient, and wings were in the longest position with little interest. In production areas, live supplies were moderate. Weights were in a full range.

National Egg Market At A Glance

Atlanta, Ga.
October 30, 2002
Report Supplied By USDA

Prices were higher on all sizes in all areas. The market tone was mostly firm. Demand was moderate to good with features providing some extra movement. Supplies were usually adequate to occasionally tight and confidently held. Breaking stock offerings were tight to sufficient for the moderate to good demand. Light type fowl were at least adequate to fully sufficient for processing needs.

The OLD FARMER'S THIS WEEK WITH ALMANAC

NOVEMBER 4-10, 2002

NEW MOON, NOV. 4

ELECTION DAY

In the poem "Election Day is a Holiday," Ogden Nash said, "They have such refined and delicate palates / That they can discover no one worthy of their ballots / And then when someone terrible gets elected / They say, "There, that's just what I expected!" We hear a lot about voting for the lesser of two evils, or having no choice at the ballot box But wouldn't it be better to offer a write-in candidate or make the best choice among the candidates than to do nothing? People have fought hard to gain the right to vote Use your right, and speak your mind on November 5!

Your every voter, as surely as your chief magistrate, exercises a public trust.

–Grover Cleveland 22nd and 24th U S president (1837–1908)

THE OLD FARMER'S WEATHER PROVERBS

A Message To The Governor

State Election Day is this coming Tuesday, Nov. 5.

In our Oct. 5 issue, the candidates for Republican and Democrat both had a chance to air their views.

So we'll air ours in this editorial. We've set this as an open letter to the governor.

Dear Governor:

We just wanted to let you know: this year the only "profit" some farms saw was from drought disaster relief, off-farm income, Farm Bill direct payments, crop insurance, or preservation money. We think that is horribly sad.

Don't you think times are desperate when 60 percent of all farm income nationwide is subsidized by taxpayers?

Without farms, we don't have an economy. The last time we had no economy, we had people out of work lining up at soup kitchens — but farmers were a lot stronger in the 1930s, supplying their time and food to feed the unemployed, keeping them from starving. Can you imagine how desperate this world would be with a growing recession and a bad farm economy? Not even soup kitchens.

Let's use what little taxpayer money will exist after education reforms to promote the welfare of the family farm. This country is nothing without strong family farms.

We wish you the best in your new position.

And we remind our readers: don't complain about the state of the economy or farming in general if you don't vote. Voting is your voice. It's time to be heard.

To Sell Your Products Directly To Consumers

Selling farm products directly from the farm to consumers is growing as a viable option both in Pennsylvania and across the nation. The USDA recently reported the number of farmers' markets in the nation has increased nearly 80 percent since 1994. That's according to data published in the "National Directory of Farmers' Markets 2002."

The directory is published every two years by USDA and shows 3,137 farmers' markets operating in the U.S. This compares to 1,755 farmers' markets operating in 1994, 2,410 in 1996, 2,746 in 1998, and 2,863 in 2000.

"The increasing popularity of farmers' markets may be attributed to the fact that they provide an integral linkage between farms and urban communities," said Agriculture Secretary Ann M. Veneman. "Direct marketing enables farmers to supplement their incomes while giving consumers access to locally grown, farm-fresh products. Farmers' markets also help educate consumers about the important role agriculture plays in our daily lives."

An up-to-date listing of farmers' markets and related facts can be found at USDA's Farmers' Markets Website: http://www.ams.usda.gov/farmersmarkets. A print edition of the directory will be available in December and can be requested from the Website.

To Learn To Manage A Multicultural Workforce

Farm operations are increasingly hiring employees who have a varied cultural background.

Penn State and Cornell University will present a conference for farm managers who employ, or are considering employing, a Hispanic or multicultural workforce. The Hispanic Workforce Management Conference will be Jan. 28-29 at the Grantville-Hershey Holiday Inn in Grantville.

"Building on the success of the 2001 conference, the 2003 conference features a dynamic program and nationally prominent speakers," said Tammy Perkins, Penn State Dairy Alliance program manager. "They will offer useful insight into practices and attitudes that will help ensure success with a multicultural workforce."

Featured topics include "Examining Your Business Culture and Exploring Cultural Characteristics," "Four Factors For Success With Your Hispanic Employees," "Developing Supervisors From Within," "Cultural Issues and Promoting From Within," "Blending Cultures In the Workplace," "Expanding Employee Skill Sets," "Overcoming the Language Barrier," "Gaining Multicultural Acceptance In the Community," and "Hiring A Legal Workforce."

"In addition to meeting and talking with speakers, conference participants will have the opportunity to meet and compare management strategies with other successful farm business managers," said Perkins.

The conference also will be in Canandaguia, N.Y. Jan. 30-31. For more information, call Perkins at (888) 373-7232.

To Learn About Risk Management In Cattle Feeding

Chet Hughes, Lancaster County livestock agent, encourages cattle feeders looking to shore up the financial side of their farming enterprise to attend a risk management seminar Monday, Nov. 25 at Yoder's Restaurant in New Holland.

The workshop begins at 10 a.m. and features Jonah J. Bowles III, Virginia Farm Bureau Federation's ag risk management coordinator. Bowles conducted a swine risk management seminar in the county earlier this year and producers were impressed with his practical, easy-to-understand approach to commodity marketing.

The workshop will be well worth your time investment. The Pennsylvania Beef Council will provide a complimentary buffet lunch for participants and the program concludes at 2 p.m.

This program effort is part of Pennsylvania's "Blueprint for Success" initiative for cattle feeders. To make a reservation for this workshop, call Chet at (717) 394-6851 or e-mail him at cdh1@psu.edu.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

WORSHIPPING THE GODS OF OUR ENEMIES

Background Scripture: Psalms 75.

Devotional Reading:

2 Chronicles 36:9-21; 2 Kings 24:8-25.

Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick once preached a sermon entitled "On Worshipping The Gods of our Enemies." Dr. Fosdick said that the people of Judah had a destructive habit of opposing their enemies and then adopting the gods and morals of the vanquished.

They never formally declared that they would no longer follow the Lord. Nor did they announce that they would now adopt the ways of their enemies. But, consciously or unconsciously, they did it just the same. They continued to worship God, but they also took on some of the pagan practices of their enemies and became very much like them.

Actually, these people might well have been regarded as patriotic. When Nebuchadnezzar deposed Jehoiachin and put on the throne his brother, Zedekiah, the people gave him their support. Certainly, they did not support or even respond favorably to the prophet Jeremiah: "... they kept mocking the messengers of God, despising his words, and scoffing at his prophets . . .i/(2 Chron. 36:16). They supported their king and their nation, but they were wrong.

Giving Up The High Road

In the midst of World War II, Dr. Fosdick was warning his congregation not to become like the Axis powers we were fighting. Some believed that, because the Nazis and Japanese had committed terrible atrocities, we should not shrink from doing the same. We were fighting for our freedom and democracy. True, said Fosdick, but let us not then give up the very things that make us and our nation morally and politically superior.

The concern of Dr. Fosdick is very timely today. Last night, on "60 Minutes," there was a discussion of whether, despite its historic and constitutional stand against the use of torture, the USA should use it because of the new threat under which we live today. I was surprised when a prominent attorney said he thought torture should be acceptable in order to protect ourselves from terrorists.

Our government is also proposing that American citizens be encouraged and helped to inform on others for the sake of national defense. During the Third Reich the Nazis encouraged the German people to do just that. The Soviet Union also encouraged relatives, neighbors, and friends to inform on each other for the sake of national security. Shall we, too, worship this pagan God of expediency and become like our enemies?

Different Kinds Of 'Messengers'

Those who, like Jeremiah, call us to not become like our enemies, are often ridiculed and mocked. They are dismissed as "unpatriotic" or "un-American."

Am I suggesting that these voices of dissent are prophetic? Not necessarily. But we must remember that God often brings his message and judgment through those who are not worshippers of the Lord.

He uses a lot of crooked sticks to strike some mighty blows: King Nebuchadnezzar of Chaldea. Later he would use King Cyrus of Persia to accomplish his purpose. These men had no idea that they were being used by God.

If the covenant between God and his peoples was administered by human beings instead of God, at the first violation it would have called it null and void. But God is unfailing in his grace toward us: "The Lord, the God of their fathers, sent persistently to them by his messengers, because he had compassion on his people . . ." (36:15). Unfortunately, the people of Judah were also persistent: "... but they kept mocking the messengers of God, despising his words, and scoffing at his prophets . . ." (36:16)

It appears that the people have outlasted God. They persisted "... till the wrath of the Lord rose against his people, till there was no remedy." But, although the people refused to heed the message of his prophets, through Nebuchadnezzar and Cyrus, the message would eventually be heard, understood, and responded to by the people. Unfortunately, they would suffer greatly until then, a suffering they could have avoided had they listened to the Lord and his messengers. Instead, they hardened their hearts and paid a terrible price.

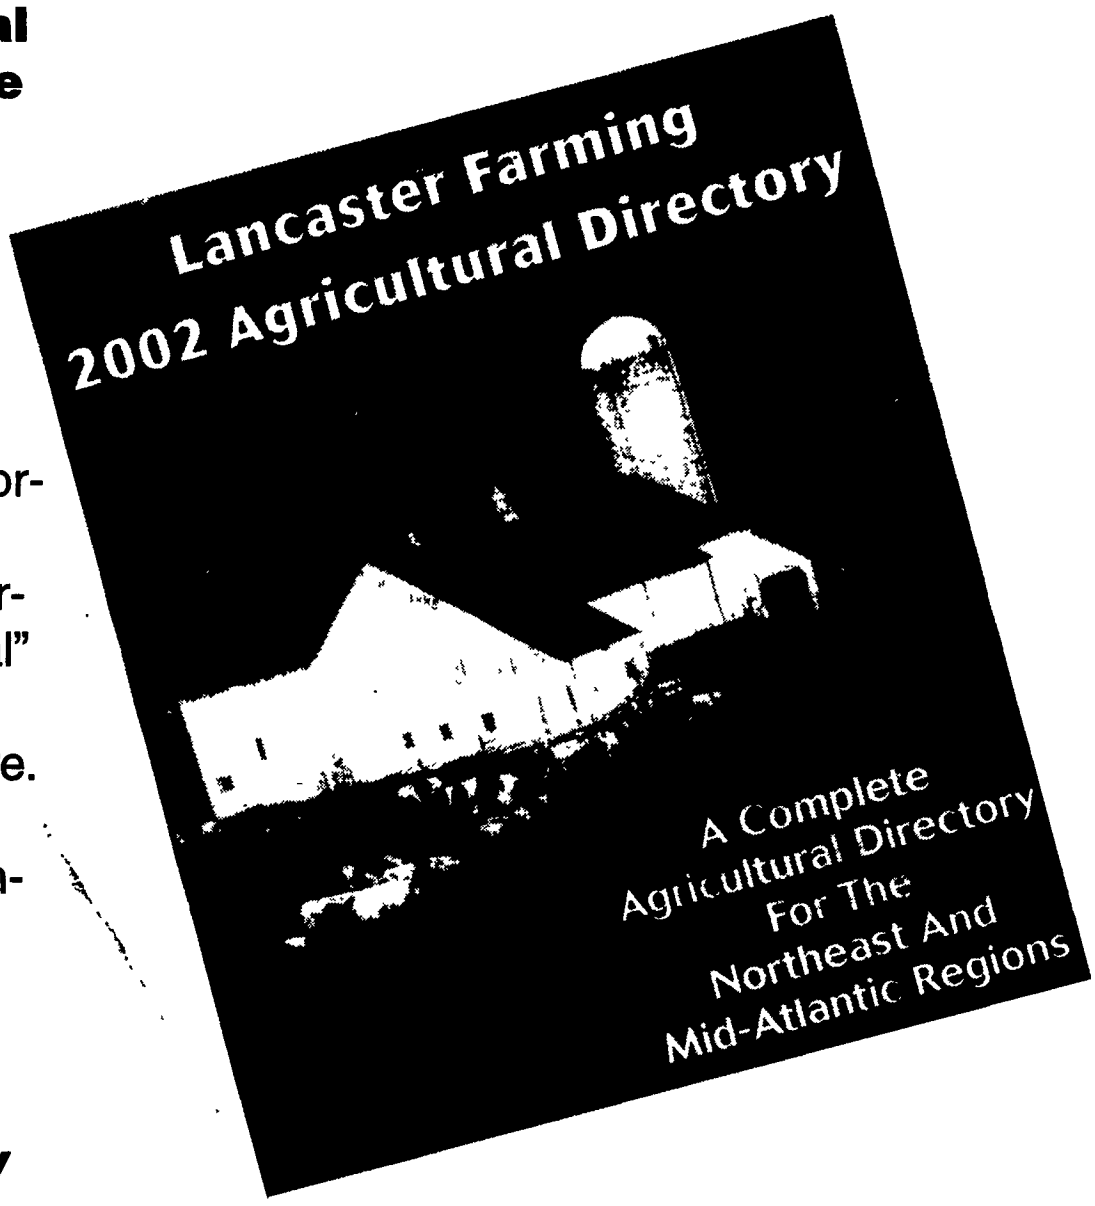
LANCASTER FARMING'S 2003 AG DIRECTORY: YOUR LINK TO DECISION-MAKERS IN THE NORTHEAST AND MID-ATLANTIC

This year marks the third annual Lancaster Farming Ag Directory, your link to the decision-makers of the Northeast and Mid-Atlantic.

For 2003, we plan a new portion of the book: "Essential Contacts." It's a page that the new or beginning farmer can turn to for quick information on a variety of topics, including the "basics" of farming.



Last year, the book totalled 152 pages, and was jam-packed with information from an eight-state region, which includes Pennsylvania and surrounding states. Again, the "essential" reference book will include more for today's decision-makers in agriculture. Lancaster Farming plans to include more names, addresses, phone numbers, and Web addresses than ever before.

Make the 2003 Lancaster Farming Agriculture Directory your decision-maker source for the more than $50 billion regional ag industry.

Plan Now To Be Represented In This Directory!

"We would use slats again if doing it all over!"
Harold Keeney; David, Nancy & Mark Wolfskill
Our original plan was to install scrapers. But after 10 minutes in a slatted barn in Somerset County, we changed our minds. Some people stay away from slats because of the initial cost, but that extra cost is made up for in the first couple years.
The one thing I like the most about slats is that there is no expense. I don't have any scrapers or drive units to maintain. I don't have to run scrapers every day or haul manure like we did in our previous tie stall barn. The cows' foot health has been a lot better, and the cows stay much cleaner. Our milk production is up and the somatic cell count has gone down. I give at least some of the credit to the slats because with less moisture on the floor, there is less bacteria.

CONSUMPTION LOOKS BETTER

- Cheese markets still stagnant.
- Butter stronger.
- Futures markets weak.

The initial look at market data this week still looks bad. Stocks of dairy products for September are high. Cheese pric[illegible] below support levels this year through August. We typically get this data three months after it actually occurred. The data indicates that consumption for American cheese and other cheese were up 2.6 and 1.1 percent over the same period a year ago. There are also rumors that recent scanner data from large retail grocery store chains suggest cheese sales are improving. This is important because better sales will ultimately lead to better prices.

The butter market at the Chicago Mercantile Exchange fared better than cheese. For the week, Grade AA butter prices were up almost two cents from the prior week, to $1.0383 per pound. Prices rose because of strong purchases for holiday sales promotions. There were 89 car loads of butter that traded this week in Chicago. That is significant. If sales continue at this pace, there is every hope that inventories will the Chicago Mercantile Exchange. The Class III futures prices for the rest of the year will be about $10 per CWT. And September retail prices for dairy products such as natural cheese, ice cream, butter, and fluid milk increased above month-ago levels.

However, there is some good

This will help improve butter prices in 2003, particularly in the second half of the year.

The Class III futures prices are very close to market lows. The futures prices as of 10/25/02 expect the Class III price to fall from $10.65 per CWT in October 2002 to $9.60-$9.80 per CWT in November and December. Class III futures prices are expected to average $11.60 per CWT for 2003. This is down from a 2003 Class III average futures price of $11.89 per CWT just a few weeks ago.

Historically speaking, the Class III price averaged $12.08 per CWT for the 57 months between January 1998 and September 2003. Thus, producers looking to forward contract or hedge milk now for 2003 should avoid locking in too much, particularly since it is so far below the 5-year average. If we are indeed at the "bottom" of the market, it is more likely than not that milk prices, and futures prices, will improve hereafter.

Average Farm Feed Costs for Handy Reference

To help farmers across the state to have handy reference of commodity input costs in their feeding operations for DHIA record sheets or to develop livestock feed cost data, here's last week's average costs of various ingredients as compiled from regional reports across the state of Pennsylvania.

Remember, these are averages, so you will need to adjust your figures up or down according to your location and the quality of your crop.

Lebanon County Holstein Club Celebrates Banner Year

Youth Were Top Quizzers In The State, Will Travel To Louisville

DAVE LEFEVER
Lancaster Farming Staff

RICHLAND (Lebanon Co.) — The Lebanon County Holstein Club celebrated a shining year at its annual banquet and meeting here Oct. 25.

Youth quiz bowl members in 2002 showed they have the depth of dairy knowledge to compete with the best teams in the country.

The club recognized quiz bowlers for their sweep of the Pennsylvania Holstein Convention in February. The senior "A" team of Brad Hoover, Daryl Maulfair, Jared Zimmerman, and Hannah Bomgardner placed first out of 14 teams. Second place went to the senior "B" team of Amanda Martin, Harrison Miller, Kyle Seyfert, and Jeremy Mack.

Senior quizzers went on to take third place at the National Holstein Convention in New Jersey this summer. They will travel to Louisville, Ky., Nov. 8-10 to compete for the national 4-H title.

Junior quiz bowl teams also made a strong appearance, placing second and third at the state convention. Members of these two teams were Nathan Heim, Erin Williams, Lauren Williams, Joel Bomgardner, Aaron Hoover, Chanelle Horst, Janelle Zimmerman, and Chris Blauch. The third junior team was represented by Brendon Hoover, David Maulfair, and Cody Hostetter in their first year of competition.

Nathan Heim, Harrisburg, was named outstanding quiz bowl member because of his "enthusiasm and willingness to learn," said Duane Nolt, youth adviser.

Hannah Bomgardner of Lebanon received the annual scholarship for a Lebanon County youth pursuing a dairy career. She is a freshman at Delaware Valley College, majoring in dairy science with a food science minor. On graduating, she plans to look for a job that includes dairy farm inspections and research work.

Bomgardner's achievements include placing first at the All-American dairy management contest, competing as a member of the winning quiz bowl team, and serving offices in the junior Holstein club. She has also been active in both 4-H and FFA.

Youth adviser Duane Nolt noted some of the character traits written by those who had nominated Bomgardner for the scholarship.

"She is a very active and hardworking individual," Nolt said. "She is a leader, not a follower."

Nolt also said that Bomgardner "can speak her mind on issues that she feels strongly about."

She is the daughter of Sonny and Kathy Bomgardner.

Youth production winners for milk, butterfat and protein, respectively were Aaron Hoover, Kelly Horning, and Daniel Eberly, 2-year-old class; Brad Hoover, Chanelle Horst, and Kelly Reist, 3-year-old; Daniel Eberly (milk and protein) and Dustin Horning, 4-year-old; Brad Hoover (butterfat and protein) and Erin Williams, 5-year-old.

Aaron Hoover was also recognized as winner of a feed evaluation contest this fall.

David Lentz, director of sales for the Pennsylvania Holstein Association (PHA), commended the youth for their accomplishments.

"The PHA is especially proud of the youth program here in Lebanon County," he said.

Lentz encouraged everyone, including adults, to attend the Junior Holstein Convention in Bethlehem Feb. 7-9.

"If you've never been to a junior convention, you ought to go because it's awful lively," he said.

Gary Lentz, Lebanon County Holstein Club president, presented the annual breed age average award to the top BAA herd in the county.

This honor again went to Kirby and Sheryl Horst of Lyncrest Holsteins, Newmanstown. With a BAA of 111.2, the Horst's Holsteins continue to lead the county as they have for the last number of years.

Bill Proposed: Include Cash Costs In Basic Formula Milk Price

MESHOPPEN (Wyoming Co.) — The Progressive Agriculture Organization (Pro-Ag) reported a U.S. Senate bill has been recently introduced which would mandate the USDA to include cash costs on dairy farms in establishing the basic formula price.

These cash costs would include all the every-day expenses on dairy farms, according to Arden Tewksbury, Pro-Ag manager.

The bill was introduced by Arlen Specter (R-PA.) Specter cited the fact that milk prices do not reflect dairy farmers' costs and that prices are at the same level as more than 20 years ago, according to Tewksbury.

The proposed bill has been referred to the U.S. Senate Agricultural Comittee.

"Pro-Ag estimates the cash costs on our average dairy farm would equate to nearly $14.50 per hundredweight (nearly $1.20 per gallon.) When you take the $14.50 basic formula price and apply the $3.25 per hundredweight Boston Class I (fluid) differential, then the Class I price would be $17.75 per hundredweight," Tewksbury said.

According to Pro-Ag, these prices would generate a pay price to the average farmer of nearly $15.80 per hundredweight (nearly $1.30 per gallon.)

PEQAP Training Sessions Scheduled For November

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Education training and certification is an important part of participation in the Pennsylvania Egg Quality Assurance Program (PEQAP).

In order to make sure training is available, the Poultry Council, along with the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, Penn State, and New Bolton Center, are offering six different times to receive the same training and certification. You only need to attend one of these six sessions and only if you have not attended a previous session this year.

Every egg producer involved in PEQAP, including service technicians and processing managers, should attend one of these sessions to be certified. Some of the areas which will be covered include information on food safety and why the program is important, specific information on rodent control, testing and sampling procedures, plus updates on paperwork and conditions for continued participation in PEQAP. You are also encouraged to ask questions about any part of the program.

There is no cost for the session, but reservations are requested. Lunch will be provided for anyone attending the Nov. 15 or Nov. 18 sessions who has registered. Please complete the response form found in Lancaster Farming and send it to Jim Shirk at PennAg Industries, 2215 Forest Hills Drive, Harrisburg, PA 17112 or fax your registration to Jim at (717) 651-5926. American Steel Span Plans To Continue Exhibiting At Farm Show

MICHELLE KUNJAPPU
Lancaster Farming Staff

McKEES ROCKS (Allegheny Co.) — For producers interested in investigating building options, American Steel Span will again be represented at the Pennsylvania Farm Show.

The event "affords a hands-on approach to selling our buildings," said Peter Pennline, director of national advertising and marketing.

"Part of the plan is to erect a small building at the show. It is so valuable for a farmer to actually walk into one of our buildings and have that person experience the quality of the building firsthand, versus a photograph," he said.

Dealerships selling American Steel Span buildings have exhibited at the Farm Show about every year, estimates Pennline.

Pennline recommends to dealers which shows to attend. "It's up to them who wants to take it," said Pennline.

The dealership that has exhibited in the Pennsylvania Farm Show in the past is known as Steel City Buildings in a space of 600 square feet.

"Farming is one of our major markets," he said. "So we try to get in many farm shows."

The show is valuable for the "quantity and quality of the attendance and the fact that we have sold so many buildings there. It is not unusual for a dealer to sell 15 buildings in one show. That's a pretty good sale."

American Steel Span and Straight Steel Corp., owned by Arnold Davis, are 17 years old. The company manufactures 5,000-6,000 buildings a year that are sold through various dealers across the nation.

The Ambridge plant manufactures straightwall buildings and the McKees Rocks factory manufactures arch or Quonset-style buildings.

Two factories, the first located in McKees Rocks, and another in Ambridge, employ about 275 employees combined.

There are approximately 35 to 40 dealers nationwide. Dealers, rather than headquarter personnel, attend the trade shows pertinent to the business.

Farm Show Complex Construction Update

PDA Farm Show

Hon. Samuel E. Hayes Jr.
Pa. Secretary of Agriculture

Building For The Future – On Schedule

Editor's note: Written by Pennsylvania Agriculture Secretary Samuel E. Hayes Jr. exclusively for Lancaster Farming, this column provides monthly updates on the exciting new construction under way at the Pennsylvania Farm Show Complex in Harrisburg. Construction is on schedule to be completed for the 2003 Farm Show.

WHAT IS THIS?

As I begin this report concerning construction at the Farm Show Complex, I ask the question: What is this "geometric" object? Where is it in the Farm Show Complex?

I can tell you it is part of the new construction; and, I mentioned it in a previous report. You can see it from inside the Farm Show Complex; and, you can see it from outside the Farm Show Complex.

It makes it possible for a person inside the Farm Show Complex to look up to see from where all blessings flow. The answer is at the end of this report.

95 Percent

Ninety-five percent. That is how close we are at the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture in having construction at our Farm Show Complex complete and ready for our Pennsylvania Farm Show in January 2003. Every venue in the Farm Show Complex is 95 percent to 100 percent complete at this time. This benchmark includes new construction and upgrades.

The last several weeks have been difficult because the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture was hosting major events while continuing our massive construction project.

During these weeks we hosted the All-American Dairy Show, which has become the largest dairy show in the nation in just a few years. There were more than 3,200 head of dairy cattle from 30 states and Canadian provinces.

The dairy show was followed by the Keystone International Livestock Exposition with more than 5,000 head of beef, sheep, swine, and horses from across the U.S. and Canada. These two expositions were followed by the weeklong Pennsylvania National Horse Show, which was world-class and brought olympic-class riders to our Farm Show Complex.

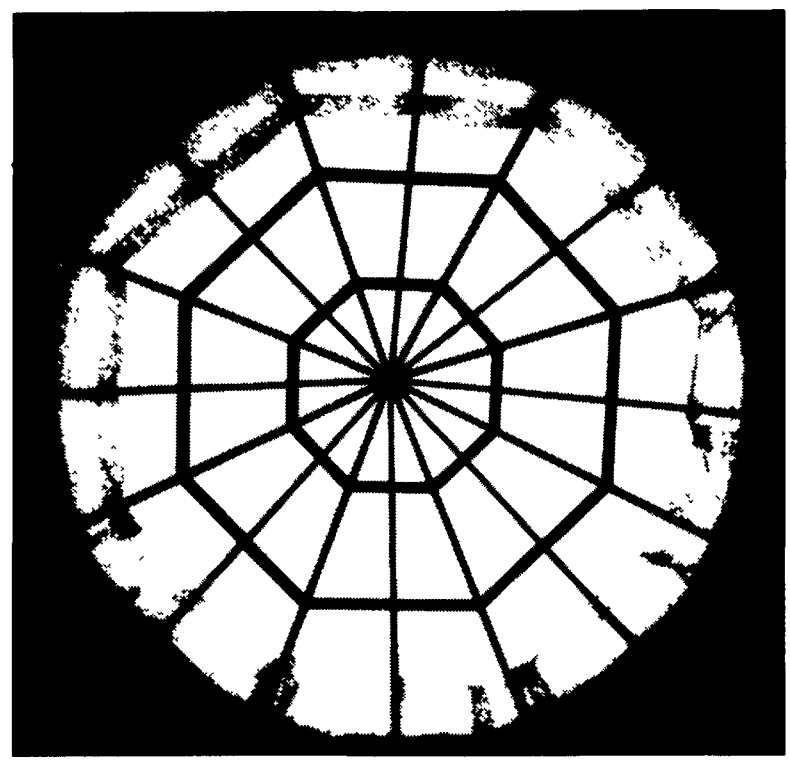
Just last weekend we had approximately 1,000 4-H members and their horses competing at the state 4-H Horse Show. And now, for a whole week, we are hosting the largest Standardbred Horse sale in the U.S.

The dairy, livestock, and three equine expositions are five really great agriculture events that are leaders in the nation and world. And while all these very, very large events were being hosted by the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, construction continued at our Farm Show Complex.

Aggies by the hundreds, animals by the thousands, livestock trucks by the hundreds, construction workers by the hundreds, and dozens of construction vehicles and equipment all trying to occupy our construction site at the same — all doing much different things. It has been a challenge, but our construction schedule has been kept on tract.

Our target for completion was set for this December. We are going to make it. And all venues will be ready for our Pennsylvania Farm Show in 2003.

As I started this report, I asked if you could identify the "geometric" object which is part of the new construction at our Farm Show Complex. It is the new dome which has been incorporated into the overall architecture of the Farm Show Complex. It is translucent.



A new dome has been incorporated into the overall architecture of the Farm Show Complex.

You can look up and see the sky and heavens above — from where all blessings flow. On behalf of agriculture, I am very appreciative Providence has made it possible for our project. It is a blessing.

We are building for agriculture. We are building for the future.

Scholarship Auction Was Battle Of The Buyers

WOOSTER, Ohio — The Grove Park Inn of Asheville, N.C., was the scene of bidding wars during the Colvin Scholarship Fund Auction, conducted in conjunction with Certified Angus Beef LLC's (CAB) annual conference, Aug. 22-24.

The auction benefited the Colvin Scholarship Fund, which was established in 1999 to honor Mick Colvin for more than 20 years of dedication to the Certified Angus Beef brand. The scholarship is awarded to an outstanding student pursuing an education and future career in the Angus industry.

A limited edition Olympic pin collection sold for $3,600. The 44-pin collection commemorated CAB's Official Suppliership to the 2002 Olympic Winter Games. It was purchased by Advance Food Company of Enid, Okla.

Also on the auction block was a 2003 vacation package including CAB's 25th Anniversary Conference in Cleveland, Ohio.

Charles Robinson of Oxford Trading Company, Westwood, Mass., had the winning bid of $3,100.

Tioga County Currently Ineligible For LCP

MESHOPPEN (Wyoming Co.) — According to Arden Tewksbury, manager of the Progressive Agriculture Organization (ProAg), as of now all major animal growers in Tioga County have been declared ineligible to participate in the Livestock Compensation Program (LCP) being administered by USDA.

On Sept. 19, the USDA Secretary Ann Veneman announced that funds would be available to animal growers to compensate them for a portion of their crop losses because of the drought or flood conditions.

The secretary's announcement stated that counties had to be designated primary disaster counties for either 2001 or 2002. Even though all countries surrounding Tioga County were declared eligible to participate in the LCP program (Potter, Lyoming, and Bradford counties in Pennsylvania and Steuben County in New York), Tioga was ineligible.

According to Tewksbury, during the summer, Pennsylvania Secretary of Agriculture requested all Pennsylvania counties to submit crop losses in their respective counties. Crop losses submitted to Harrisburg by the Tioga Farm Services Agency (FSA) office did not indicate sufficient losses in Tioga County for the county to qualify.

When officials of ProAg learned of Tioga County's predicament, they immediately contacted officials in Tioga County, Harrisburg, and Washington, D.C. in an attempt to help rectify the dilemma facing Tioga County farmers. Tewksbury said, "A coalition of U.S. Senators (such as Sen. Specter) from the Northeast and Upper Midwest are in the process of submitting a letter to U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Veneman to rectify the situation."

Tewksburg said, "I have had numerous calls from Tioga County farmers since July 1 complaining about the weather conditions and crop losses. I have visited the county and the losses there should have been reported with sufficient losses to qualify Tioga County.

Tioga County FSA officials did submit an adjusted report to Harrisburg in early October which did indicate sufficient losses However, this was past the USDA deadline of Sept. 19.

In defense of the Tioga County officials, Tewksbury said, "I haven't talked to anyone that was aware of the Sept. 19 announcement, and I can't understand why counties were not given at least a 10-day grace period to update their losses."

Tewksbury said, "the losses are there in Tioga County, and if farmers in surrounding counties are going to receive some compensation for their losses, than certainly the farmers in Tioga County must be declared eligible."

Lancaster County Site Of 'Smart Growth' Community

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — A new community squarely places Lancaster County in the forefront of a national movement in Smart Growth practices.

Millcreek, the latest new home community from Lancaster-based Charter Homes, promises to be Pennsylvania's return to neighborhoods, a place that replicates neighborhoods of the past, with front porches and sidewalks that invite residents to interact and share their lives with one another.

A special unveiling, open to the community, township officials and the media, took place Monday, October 28 at the Old Barn at Millcreek.

Nationally, the Millcreek neighborhood holds special relevance as one of only a handful of communities to fully embrace the practices of next generation land development.

"What's been lost in current residential development is a sense of neighborhood," said Rob Bowman, president of Charter Homes. "We're creating Millcreek as a place where people feel connected with one another and their community. We have been very fortunate to work closely with George Desmond of the Charlan Group, a developer whose vision and ideas closely match our own philosophy on smart land usage."

So unique is the concept, that in order to build this type of community, it required West Lampeter Township officials to pass a new ordinance specifically focused on the creation of neighborhoods.

Designed to create a friendly neighborhood atmosphere, Millcreek is an alternative to most current residential developments, which often strips away trees and land contours. Millcreek works to preserve its setting as a starting point for a seemingly organic neighborhood.

With its design, Millcreek devotes considerable attention to what Charter Homes considers to be three important attributes of any neighborhood: architecture, social interaction, and the outdoors. Streets, trails, common areas and playgrounds are designed in scale and friendly to walkers, bikers and hikers, winding through and connecting a vibrant, living neighborhood. Missing are the straightaway streets so common in conventional developments. Streetscapes are being built, with homes designed in groups to assure that each plays well against the other, lending a sense of human scale and accessibility from street level. Many will have wooden front porches to welcome passers-by and garages are tucked in the rear to avoid visual disruption.

The Old Barn at Mill creek — complete with hand-painted neighborhood sign is being preserved and renovated as a gathering place open to residents for meetings, parties and other community-specific activities. "The Farmhouse ," a new building designed to replicate a typical Lancaster County agricultural home, is being built onsite to house the sales office and a general store.

Millcreek will borrow from its agricultural roots. Amish farmers are being contracted to sell fresh produce on site during the summer. Cindy Baker, the well-known owner of Merenda Zug's Cafe in Strasburg, will open a second location, MZ2, featuring coffees, bagels, newspapers and sundries within The Farmhouse at Millcreek.

Residential housing will be the hallmark of the property. Single-family dwellings will co-exist with carriage homes and townhomes. Gathering places, including The Farmhouse, and open space will allow seniors, families, and singles to mix easily.

The land use plan, developed by nationally-renowned, Colorado-based Smart Growth residential planning firm Downing, Thorpe and James, began by first identifying significant open tracts of green land and preserving them. Development is clustered to reduce the environmental impact of infrastructure and preserve woodlands, waterways and wildlife habitat.

Some 31 acres, or roughly 36 percent of the community, will be open space, and 11.5 acres of that open space will be donated to West Lampeter Township. A half-mile, natural mulch pathway will hopefully serve as an impetus for additional trailway set asides along Mill Creek.

Millcreek has hired a consultant to identify and preserve the property's trees. More than $1 million is being invested in the community's landscaping which will incorporate indigenous materials.

Drainage easement and land use have been designed to utilize best management practices to minimize the effects of storm water runoff and decrease the potential for soil erosion. This practice effectively filters the runoff and reinstates it into the groundwater table. In addition, four ponds will create natural habitat and encourage social interaction.

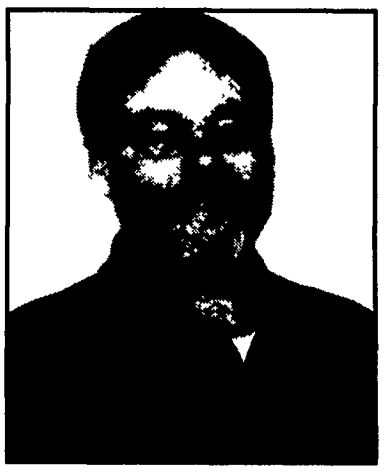
INTERSEEDING TRITICALE AND ALFALFA

Paul H. Craig
Extension Agent
— Forage Crop Production
Dauphin County

In 2001 I had an opportunity to visit the University of Maryland's Clarksville Facility. One of the most interesting trials I observed was looking at an interseeding of triticale into an existing alfalfa stand following the last fall harvest to increase first cutting yields. This work began in the fall of 1996 and has shown some very impressive results.

With extremely short forage production in 2002, this practice may be very handy next spring following a winter/spring of feeding stored feeds. In the fall of 2001 I convinced a Dauphin County dairyman, Tom Williams, to try overseeding some of his stands of alfalfa and he was very pleased with the results this spring.



Paul H. Craig

The initial response from producers about overseeding triticale is that older, thinner stands would be best suited for the practice. Work at Maryland has shown, however, that there is an advantage to this practice on even younger stands of alfalfa, 1 to 3 years, without any detrimental effects to the alfalfa. Here's how it works, based on Maryland research.

Following last harvest, triticale is sown at 50 to 60 pounds per acre into newer stands of alfalfa (1 to 3 years old) and 80 pounds/acre into older, thinner stands. Then in the spring, additional nitrogen is topdressed to get optimum production of the triticale. On newer stands, highest production has resulted from the addition of 50 pounds of nitrogen.

On older alfalfa stands, with higher triticale seeding rates, optimum yields were achieved with the addition of 120 pounds of nitrogen. In one trial, yields of first-cut alfalfa, without triticale but with 80 pounds of nitrogen was 1.93 tons/acre, with triticale and 80 pounds of nitrogen yields were 2.79 tons/acre of forage and 80 pounds of triticale and 120 pounds of nitrogen yielded 3.22 tons/acre. Forage analysis of the triticale/alfalfa silage cut at the late boot stage, in the 2000 crop, was 24.1 percent CP, 33.1 percent ADF, and 42.9 percent NDF.

Maryland faculty think the addition of nitrogen is the secret to success of the alfalfa stand persistence. They believe that although alfalfa can "fix" nitrogen, there does not appear to be sufficient nitrogen for the companion crop. Other benefits include an improvement in the first-cut harvest efficiency and cleanliness without any lodging. The triticale supports the alfalfa and keeps it standing. This upright position results in less leaf shading and leaf loss. The upright position also results in better air circulation within the stand that keeps the lower part of the plant and the soil surface drier. The triticale also offers good winter annual weed competition in older stands.

Why triticale and not rye? Triticale is 2 to 3 weeks later in reaching maturity than rye and does not reach fully headed as quickly as rye, thus providing a wider harvest window more closely related to the optimum time to make first cutting of alfalfa. Triticale is taller than wheat or barley and thus has a higher yield potential. And the optimum harvest stage for wheat and barley is later than the desired time for alfalfa.

New York Beef Industry Moves To Produce Safer Beef

ITHACA, N.Y. — Thanks to the growing number of companies offering irradiated ground beef products, New York's backyard barbecues have been safer than ever this summer.

The interest in food irradiation has gained momentum this past year in the wake of meat recalls and food security issues.

Irradiation is the process of exposing food products to ionizing irradiation in order to kill potentially dangerous pathogens that may be present in the product.

More than 110 food industry representatives attended a one-day workshop on food irradiation at Cornell University on Aug. 16. This workshop featured experts from the New York Department of Health, Cornell University, Penn State University, the Minnesota Beef Council and Wegmans.

Topics included an update on food borne illness, history and use of irradiation, science of irradiation, nutritional aspects of irradiation, beef industry perspective, retail launch success and consumer acceptance.

New York became a leader in food irradiation in May when Rochester-based Wegmans became the first retailer in the nation to market electronically irradiated refrigerated beef under their own label. Wegmans now offers fresh irradiated ground beef in all 63 stores in New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

Minnesota-based Huisken Meats became the first processor in the nation to use electricity to eliminate the threat of E. Coli O157:H7 in its products in May 2000. From an initial distribution in 84 stores located totally within the Twin Cities, the availability of Huisken "Be Sure" brand frozen patties has rapidly grown to literally thousands of supermarkets in 35 states.

Schwan's, the nation's distributor of premium frozen foods via home delivery, and Omaha Steaks are also successfully marketing irradiated ground beef products nationally. Recently Dairy Queen became the first fast food restaurant chain to offer irradiated hamburgers. Currently, irradiated beef patties are being sold at over 50 Minnesota Dairy Queen locations.

New York has been the focal point as the demand for irradiated ground beef spreads nationwide.

"Our goal is to make beef the safest food on the dinner table and irradiation is helping us do that," said Carol Gillis, executive director of the New York Beef Industry Council. "By helping to increase consumer knowledge and confidence in beef, we expand demand. Irradiated beef will do for the beef industry what pasteurized milk did for the dairy industry a half century ago: improve quality and help stop the spread of food borne diseases."

More and more companies are turning to SureBeam electronic irradiation technology. SureBeam irradiates food using ordinary electricity. Several other processors are also using the technology, including Excel, a division of Cargill. Excel, in fact, will be the first company in the nation to install SureBeam's electron beam technology in two of its meat processing plants located in Nebraska and Texas.

Scientists have known for decades that exposing food to X-rays, high energy electrons, or cobalt-60 could kill deadly bacteria. Irradiation complements — not replaces — other food safety procedures. That is why consumers should still grill irradiated burgers properly to ensure their safety — for ground beef, that means grilling patties to an internal temperature of at least 160 degrees.

While some consumers have been wary of irradiated foods — largely because of unfounded fear ignited by special interest groups opposing the use of nuclear energy — many irradiated products have become commonplace. Commercial spices used as ingredients in ready-to-eat foods, for example, have been irradiated to kill pests and other contaminants for over a decade. Of course, the real pioneers are our astronauts who have been eating irradiated food since the early 1970s. "Research shows that education is the key to consumer acceptance of irradiated food products," says New York Beef Industry Council executive Carol Gillis. "We're hoping to educate consumers about the safety of irradiation and continue the trend of acceptance of irradiated beef."

The use of irradiation as a food safety tool is endorsed by a host of health and public safety organizations, including the World Health Organization, the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations, the American Dietetic Association and dozens of others.

Gelbvieh Honors Dams Of Merit

WESTMINSTER, Colo. — The American Gelbvieh Association (AGA) each year honors Gelbvieh females that have proven longevity and productivity.

The Dam of Merit honors cows that have produced at least three calves with all weaning information reported to the American Gelbvieh Association. A Dam of Distinction meets the same requirements but must have produced eight calves or more.

A total of 2,267 cows qualified for Dam of Merit honors in 2002, while 301 cows were named Dam of Distinction. This comes from a total base of 55,765 active cows. Owners of Dams of Merit and Dams of Distinction receive a certificate for each cow recognized. Breeders of the females also receive a certificate that lists the name and registration number of each recognized cow bred by them. All of the data on the females must have been submitted by Aug. 1.

Nebraska leads the way with 383 cows recognized this year with Dam of Merit and Dam of Distinction honors. Trailing is South Dakota with 342 and North Dakota with 298 head. Virginia had eight Dams of Distinction and 39 Dams of Merit. Ohio had five Dams of Merit. New York had two Dams of Merit.

NCBA CEO Tours Pennsylvania

nomic stress. NCBA is focused on "enhancing that potential for profitability and viability in you, the beef producers," he said.

Beef producers have indicated that top issues include preserving their way of life, growing their business, and passing the farm or ranch on to next generation, "so when I go to work every day, that's top with me. As an organization, what we are about is how to identify tools that you can put in your toolbox to enhance your profitability."

NCBA philosophy "has been about market-driven solutions, less government, and a consumer focus on enhancing demand for our product," he said.

Stokes highlighted that NCBA is a producer-controlled organization. "I don't make policy, I just implement it," said Stokes. "I don't approve funding — that's what our producers do."

Sixty-three percent of NCBA's board of directors consists of cow/calf producers, 30 percent are cattle feeders, six percent are allied industry representatives, and one percent is packer representatives — a board that is "cattlemen controlled but industry inclusive. When we look at issues like beef safety today, everybody's at the table to figure out how we can produce a safer and more wholesome product."

NCBA contracts with the Cattlemen's Beef Board to carry out beef checkoff programs, which are focused on enhancing demand.

This includes product development, such as the value-added cut or ready-to-eat products.

Growing beef demand also includes nutrition — identifying the nutrient benefits of beef and getting the message out. The NCBA has forged a strong partnership with the American Dietetic Association. The two organizations are developing a lean beef cookbook.

Stokes also highlighted NCBA beef safety research efforts. Feed additives, steam pasteurization techniques, and sanitizing systems on cattle going into the packing house are options under consideration.

NCBA representatives work to protect the business environment in Washington, D.C. Permanent repeal of the estate tax and small business incentives are part of their agenda. They also work to ensure producers retain property and land- use rights.

Environmental policy is also a concern, as NCBA representatives work with regulatory agencies to address water and air quality issues. In addition they pushed to enhance programs to help producers get more environmental dollars.

Marketing, a hot issue for producers, has prompted NCBA to work with the Chicago Mercantile Exchange on ways to improve using live cattle contracts as a risk management tool. Finding answers to establishing price and eliminating the inequities and volatility that is in the system today are priorities, he said.

NCBA has also worked with USDA on mandatory price reporting. "This marketing area, and price discovery, is one we must find the answer to," Stokes said.

Trade is another emphasis. "Globalization is here. How do we manage trade?" he said.

"The philosophy we've had, and if you look at the policy that's established, it's about fair trade, not just free trade. If folks want access to the U.S., they need to give us access everywhere else.

"The biggest challenge in these treaties is ensuring that we have a level playing field."

Checkoff Litigation

The checkoff program stands in litigation in two cases, said Stokes. In Montana, in a district court in Billings, one case awaits the district court's judging. "We are anticipating a positive decision based on what we've seen in the evidence that has been presented." he said.

After a South Dakota district judge ruled the checkoff unconstitutional, the case was appealed to the 8th circuit court of appeals. "Briefs have been filed in the case, and we expect that it will be heard sometime after the first of the year," he said.

After a process of decisions and appeals, conflicting decisions will probably drive the case to the supreme court.

"We are very confident that in the end the beef checkoff will be ruled constitutional, but we also know that we're in for a long trip," said Stokes.

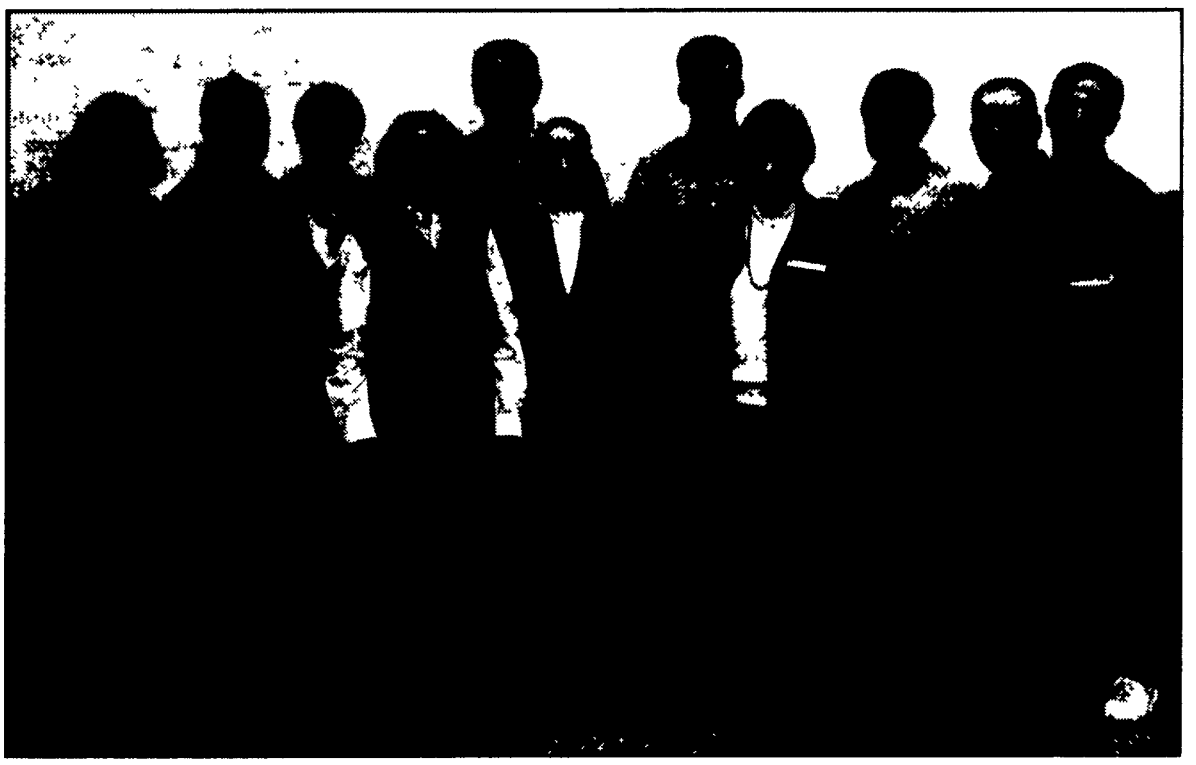
The justice department, several cattlemen's organizations, and private citizens are underwriting litigation costs.

Of fourteen commodity checkoff programs today, seven are in litigation related to constitutionality.

Stokes addressed price discovery issue and lack of competition in the buying, packing, and retailing industries. Iowa Cattlemen have started a closed co-op to get more value for their product, he said, noting that "value must be passed back to producers."

Producers present discussed possible government subsidies for the beef industry, enforcing the Packers and Stockyards Act, the introduction of irradiated ground beef into stores and restaurants, captive supply/packer ownership of cattle, and the possibilities of country-of-origin labeling.

"NCBA is your organization," summarized Stokes. "The way to change policy is to get involved and to participate so that you can help make those decisions that form policy to move the industry forward," he said.



Attendees of the town hall meeting in Lancaster included, from left, Paula Leuenberger and Scott Wright, Pennsylvania Beef Council (PBC) representatives; Carol Gillis, New York Beef Industry Council executive director; Michelle Cornman, Paul Slayton, and Holly Marshall, PBC; Terry Stokes, NCBA; Connie Kelley, executive secretary, N.Y. Beef Producers' Association; and William Lesher, Bob Livingston, and Bernard Nissley, PBC board members.

service has included finance committee member and lecturer for Pomona Grange #26, president of Hayfield Grange, and chairman for the Grange exhibit at the Crawford County Fair.

According to William A. Steel, outgoing president of the Pennsylvania State Grange, Merritt has taken on a very active role in the organization since joining in 1982.

"He has much enthusiasm for the Grange," Steel said. "He exemplifies what a Granger is. For that reason, we are proud to name Mr. Merritt as our Granger of the Year — an honor he is much deserving."

When it comes to Grange activities, Merritt is always willing to pitch in. He has sewn, cooked, baked, decorated, built, performed, and educated for his Grange.

Merritt's community service is not just limited to Grange activities. Even with a career as a funeral director, Merritt always finds time to reach out to the community, especially through his service as Junior Achievement consultant. For his Junior Achievement service, he was awarded the Junior Achievement Consultant Recognition Award this past year.

Fluent in Arabic, Merritt has assisted the Arab-Kurdish population in his region — a service that has been especially in demand since Sept. 11. In addition to Arabic, Merritt is also fluent in Spanish.

"He has touched so many lives in a positive way," Steel said. "He has used his Grange as a community outreach tool and made a difference on our behalf and for the good of all. For that reason, we honor and thank Kenneth Merritt."

"I was shocked," Merritt said after receiving his award. "I thought the award would go to someone who has been with the Grange for 30, 40, or even 50 years."

Merritt encourages nonmembers to consider joining the Pennsylvania State Grange.

"It is a family organization where parents don't just drop their children — they can be a part of the organization with them."

Merritt is the funeral director at Roofner - Collins Funeral Home, Inc. located in Meadville.

Last year's honor went to Ruth Walker of Washington County.

State Grange Opens 130th Annual Convention

Hundreds of members of the Pennsylvania State Grange gathered Saturday at Trinity High School in Washington, to hear William A. Steel, president of the Harrisburg-based organization.

Steel's remarks came during the opening of the 130th Session of the Pennsylvania State Grange Convention.

Pomona Granges in Washington and Green counties hosted this year's convention.

The Pennsylvania Sate Grange is a grassroots organization with approximately 20,000 members in 360 chapters across the commonwealth. The goal of the organization is to improve the lives of rural Pennsylvania through many vehicles, including legislative action. The four-day session lays the groundwork for legislative initiatives for the 2002-2003 year.

The closing of this year's convention marked an end to Steel's six-year reign as president of the Pennsylvania branch of the national organization.

In his final address, Steel said the closing legislative year began on a good note with Gov. Mark Schweiker signing into law SB 100, the newborn hearing-testing bill supported by the Grange.

"The law now allows all newborns to be tested for hearing loss, and requires that hospitalization insurance pay for the testing," Steel said. "Technology has advanced to the point that a simple test can be done on newborns before leaving the hospital, and if a hearing loss is detected, treatment can begin very early in the life of the child."

Another Pennsylvania State Grange success this past year occurred when delegates approved a resolution last year seeking regulation of the viatical industry. A bill was introduced by Senator Hal Mowery and has help turn a Grange resolution into law.

"The bill licenses viatical providers and gives the insurance department of the commonwealth the authority to approve settlement contracts and disclosure procedures," Steel said.

"Due to the drastic downturn in business within the state and nationwide, there were many cuts and holds on the current state budget, as well as much debate on how to finance the year ahead. About three-fourths of the state's rainy day fund was spent to make ends meet. The Grange requested additional funding for agricultural research and extension at Penn State, and we are pleased to see more than two million dollars added to the proposed budget.

Pennsylvania Grange News

ment of Environmental Protection proposed water resource legislation to inventory and protect Pennsylvania's water resources. Much debate and many hearings have been held, but the main intents of the bills are still in place: The state needs a new Water Plan, and it should be controlled as much as possible from the regional level. Critical water areas need to be defined — areas of short supply determined. A formal program to promote water conservation needs to be developed, and standards need to be developed for well siting, construction, alteration, and abandonment.

"Much of our time was spent combating false information being spread about the intent of water legislation. The Internet is a wonderful thing when used for good, but it can be a real problem for those who are trying to stop false information from being circulated. We appreciate the efforts of many Grangers who have notified us of the incorrect materials, and have helped to correct the understanding of the intent of the legislation."

Steel spoke of another bill that has received much attention in the recent months SB 1413, introduced by Sen. Roger A. Madigan (R-23). Its purpose is to limit the rights of municipalities, especially townships enacting illegal ordinances that are beyond the scope of state laws dealing with environmental controls.

Another win for the Pennsylvania State Grange is the establishment of the "Do Not Call" list. Passed as a Grange resolution and later enacted through the Attorney General's office, Pennsylvanian citizens can now add their name to a list that will prevent solicitation from telemarketers.

"Animal sanitation became a big issue this year after a young girl became ill from e-coli after visiting a farm on a school tour," Steel said. "There was much legislative wrangling, but we prevailed. The legislation, which passed the Senate and is being considered in the House, is a common-sense approach to personal hygiene when handling animals or being around them in exhibits, fairs, and petting zoos."

The Grange also supported legislation allowing farmers to participate in the Small Business Administration loan program. Currently, agriculture is prohibited from applying for such loans even, though farms are, in fact, small businesses. The administration is supporting the change, which will allow for small business loans to farmers who wish to expand or improve their operation.

"Our ongoing project dealing with stray voltage continues to be funded by the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture. We expect a report to be released soon on the results of the two-year study and recommended actions for the elimination of the problem."

Fisher, Knoll Address Rural Pa.

Pennsylvania Attorney General and Republican gubernatorial candidate Mike Fisher addressed a delegation of Grangers at the 130th State Session of the Pennsylvania State Grange.

Fisher addressed the Grangers on the opening day of the four-day convention.

Fisher told the group, "Prosperity was grown in Pennsylvania, and it continues to be cultivated one farm at a time.

"Farmers settled our state, founded many of our communities, started schools to teach their children, and began businesses to market their products and supply their needs," he said.

Fisher told the Grangers representing rural Pennsylvania that Pennsylvania needs to ensure farmers a continuation of their profession and also the ability to explore new ideas, new crops and new technology.

"Jane Earll and I want to clear away the barriers for farm growth in Pennsylvania."

Fisher not only reassured farmers of his commitment, but he reminded rural communities that he believes no town should be left behind.

"Pennsylvania's farm production continues to go up, but the number of farm families in Pennsylvania continues to go down," the Republican candidate said. "Fewer of you are doing more and more, but that is not a trend we want to continue."

To combat the declining number of farmers, Fisher said that more must be done to encourage the next generation to farm.

"We need to stress education and training," he said, "to ensure our next generations have the skills to be successful farmers."

If elected, Fisher told the Grangers he would like to see a boost in agricultural education via 4-H, FFA and expanded agricultural classes at our state colleges and universities. Another existing program he would like to see further developed is Agriculture in the Classroom.

"We must protect the Right to Farm. Without sound and reasonable regulations and environmental programs, we all lose."

He discussed the property tax crises, and the need to strengthen rural communities through roads, water, sewer, high-speed Internet and other infrastructure that would attract jobs and grow businesses.

In conclusion, Fisher told the group of approximately 400 Grangers that as Attorney General, he worked to make a difference for Pennsylvania.

"As your governor, I can do even more," he said.

Two days later, the Grange delegation welcomed Catherine Baker-Knoll, Democratic candidate for lieutenant governor.

Baker-Knoll told 300-plus Grangers that together she and Ed Rendell recognize agriculture, the largest single industry in Pennsylvania, must be a full partner in the state's economic future.

"Preserving agriculture's place as the leading industry in Pennsylvania is crucial to maintaining a healthy and diverse economy."

According to Knoll, the protection and promotion of Pennsylvania agriculture will be a top priority for the Rendell-Knoll administration.

"We must not forget the place agriculture holds in our past, our present, and our future. We will respect the right to farm, fight hard to protect and preserve farmland, and promote profitable market opportunities. We will encourage agricultural education and improve food safety and animal health," she said.

Knoll touched upon property taxes and her party's plan to lower them.

"We must change the way we fund education, not only to lower property taxes, but also to ensure that every child has a quality education."

Other key issues she addressed included revitalization of communities, creating jobs, and air quality and water.

"We can have a brighter future with more jobs, better schools for our children, lower property taxes, and affordable health care," she said in her conclusion.

More information about the Grange meeting is scheduled for upcoming issues of Lancaster Farming.

AAA Announces Pa. Breeders Who Registered Most Angus

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. — The 10 producers who registered the most Angus beef cattle in the state of Pennsylvania recorded a total of 990 Angus with the American Angus Association during fiscal year 2002, which ended Sept. 30, according to John Crouch, executive vice president of the American Angus Association.

The 10 top recorders in Pennsylvania are: Sinclair Cattle Company, Warfordsburg, 304-head; Sidney Riggs, Friedens, 135; South Branch Farms, Seven Valleys, 130; McKean Brothers, Mercer, 106; Samuel Wylie III, Breezewood, 57-head; Frey Family Angus, Quarryville, 57; Oak Hill Angus Farm, Avella, 52; Corle Land and Cattle, Imler, 51; Work Land and Cattle Company, Uniontown, 49-head; Pennsylvania State University, University Park, 49.

Angus breeders across the nation in 2002 registered 281,965 head of Angus cattle compared to 271,206 in fiscal 2001. "Registrations have increased nearly four percent from last year," Crouch said. "The year-end statistics indicate a constant demand for Angus genetics in commercial herds as producers continue to focus on end product quality and its effect on their bottom line."

Penn State Cooperative Extension Names Outstanding Recipients

YORK (York Co.) — The Penn State Cooperative Extension, at its annual meeting Oct. 26, named this year's recipient of the prestigious "Outstanding Extension Supporter Involvement" Award.

This year's winners are Mr. and Mrs. David Schreck of Spring Grove. Mr. and Mrs. Schreck, along with their son Christopher and daughter Rachel, own and operate Iron Ridge Farm, located on Myers Road. In their farm they offer a "Pick Your Own Blueberries" operation as well as selling strawberries, asparagus, flowers and a variety of other vegetables.

In this, the 100th anniversary of the 4-H program, no one is more worthy of this recognition then Dave and Karen Schreck. The family became a part of 4-H about eight years ago when Rachel wanted to join the 4-H Rabbit Club. Chris had an interest in poultry.

Dave and Karen quickly saw the value of becoming volunteers in the 4-H program, and they set about the task immediately. They showed their two children just what it means to get involved and to volunteer. First, they both worked as activity leaders in the rabbit club. They helped wherever needed. Helping to haul animals and straw to petting zoos and learning centers, manning the learning centers for more hours then could possibly be calculated, they generously shared their knowledge about agriculture and animals with all who came or had questions. They spent hours setting up and tearing down for dinners, achievement programs and camps.

When the Poultry Club needed new leaders, Dave and Karen willingly took on the job. They learned all they could about 4-H and being an organizational leader. This is their fifth year as respected and well-loved leaders of this Club.

Dave has served on the 4-H Advisory Council for three years. Within this council he has served as vice president and secretary and chaired or served on numerous committees. Karen has served three years on the 4-H Fair board of directors. She helps to organize the kitchen, helps with setup and tear down, and volunteers her support and ideas for new and innovative projects at the 4-H Fair. She and Dave, along with several other members, take complete charge of the chicken barbecue — making sure everything is there, the chicken is cooked properly, and securing one of the largest donations to the 4-H Fair — the sweet corn.

"Dave and Karen work tirelessly to help the 4-H County Council with their camps, fund raisers, community service projects, and workshops," according to Mary Jo Kraft, 4-H/youth development program educator. "Dave and Karen have opened their farm and their home to countless numbers of tours, dinners, and picnics for 4-H members and families. They went out of their way to insure handicapped accessibility for the 4-H Easter Seals Club. Their members included youth in wheel chairs and with other developmental and emotional challenges. Dave and Karen felt so strongly about exposing all youth to agriculture that they provided the means for these special youth to be able to tour their farm. It was a trip these youngsters will never forget."

MAAC Honors Stump, Kennerknecht

BETH MILLER
Cumberland Co. Correspondent

CARLISLE (Cumberland Co.) — In the eyes of the Mid-Atlantic Alliance of Cooperatives (MAAC), John Stump is a leader in the cooperative world. And MAAC thinks that Raymond Kennerknecht is one of the region's top cooperative agents.

MAAC showed its appreciation for Stump by giving him the 2002 Horizon Award at the annual conference at the Clarion Hotel and Convention Center in Carlisle. MAAC gave Raymond Kennerknecht the 2002 Cooperative Education Award at the same meeting.

The Horizon Award is presented to an outstanding young or emerging cooperative leader who has made contributions in support of industry educational programs and leadership within the Alliance and the cooperative community. The Horizon Award winner, John Stump, is an account executive in the Bel Air, Md. office of MidAtlantic Farm Credit. He has had a 14-year career with Farm Credit.

As a board member and officer, Stump provided leadership in the growth of the former Maryland Council of Farm Cooperatives.

He has been a part of the founding leadership of the MAAC, serving both as a member of the transition team that prepared for the merger of Maryland Council of Farmers Cooperatives and the Pennsylvania Council of Cooperatives. He is a board member and secretary of MAAC.

"I am very honored to receive this award for my volunteer work and to be identified as a future leader in the cooperative world," said Stump.

The Cooperative Education Award is presented to an individual who has made significant or long-standing contributions and has gone beyond the call of duty in promoting and supporting cooperative education activities. Cooperative Award winner Raymond Kennerknecht has worked for the Crawford County Extension for 33 years and for 23 of those has served as coordinator for 4-H programming.

John Stump, Bel Air, Md., receives the MAAC Horizon Award from MAAC President James Barnett, Carlisle.

Working with the 4-H Adult Committee, he has secured funding and promoted programming in youth development that has reached thousands. His efforts have helped develop leader groups for Crawford County ambassadors, horse and pony 4-H programs, and the 4-H and FFA Livestock Sale Committee. He is a graduate of Penn State with a bachelor's degree in animal husbandry, and lives in Meadville.

During the annual meeting, the members voted to retain the existing board of directors. The 2002 MAAC board of directors are president, James Barnet, Carlisle; vice president, Allen O'Hara, Reston, Va.; secretary, John Stump, Bel Air, Md.; treasurer, David Zimmerman, New Holland.

Directors are Paul Baumgardner, Emmitsburg, Md.; Jesse Bural, Monrovia, Md.; Alfred Calkins, Troy; Raymond Diebold, Altoona; Luanne Eckenrode, Huntingdon; Karen Engel, Keymar, Md.; J. Dairy Stakeholders To Meet

MIDDLETOWN (Dauphin Co.) — The Pennsylvania Dairy Stakeholders 2002 Conference is scheduled for Wednesday and Thursday, Dec. 11-12. This year's event will be conducted at the Holiday Inn Harrisburg East, Harrisburg.

The theme for the conference is "Opportunities + Responsibilities = Our Future." The program is full of exciting and valuable presentations from many different representatives of the dairy industry.

Carl Theinus, a dairy producer from Wisconsin, will speak on building a successful and successive dairy operation. Theinus will join a panel discussion with several younger Pennsylvania producers who entered the business in very different ways.

Demand for dairy products is a hot topic, and Dr. John Lord of St. Joseph's University will bring participants up to date on consumer preferences and new opportunities for dairy products.

Dr. Christine Kellett, from Penn State's Dickinson School of Law, will address the issue of "freedom to operate." Kellett will be joined on this panel by a lobbyist for the Pennsylvania Association of Township Supervisors, a representative from the swine industry, and a Lancaster County dairy producer who is also a township supervisor.

Participants will also hear different perspectives on the role of the Northeast dairy industry from a producer, a processor and a retailer. Rick Smith, CEO of Dairylea Cooperative, will lead this discussion.

Doug Wilson, CEO for Cooperative Resources International will speak on "Motivating Your Team!" after the evening dinner at the conference. The Pennsylvania Dairymen's Association Annual Awards will also be presented at this dinner. The Pennsylvania Dairy Stakeholders' Annual Meeting will be conducted Thursday morning during the conference.

"No matter who you are in this dairy food industry - producer, processor, elected official, consumer - we need you at this conference. You do not want to miss this year's exceptional program," said David McCorkle, 2002 Conference Chair and Pennsylvania Food Merchants Association president.

Cost to attend the conference is $90. Producers registering in groups of three or more and paying with the same check receive a discounted rate of $70 each. Sleeping rooms are blocked at a special conference rate at the Holiday Inn Harrisburg East for conference attendees until Nov. 20. Conference registration deadline is Nov. 25.

Dairy Cattle Breeders Raise $81,200 To Benefit Holstein Foundation

BRATTLEBORO, Vt. — In an unprecedented demonstration of investment in developing future dairy leaders, more than 50 dairy cattle breeders raised $81,200 to benefit the Holstein Foundation in the Futures Club Project, a silent auction sale at World Dairy Expo Oct. 3-6.

The Futures Club Project was spearheaded by Tom Morris, a member of the Holstein Foundation's Board of Trustees. All of the proceeds from the sale are donated to the Foundation's Future Leaders Campaign, a capital campaign endowment initiative. Holstein Association USA will match the dollars raised for a total of $162,400.

Richard Chichester, chairman of the Holstein Foundation Board of Trustees, said, "The Foundation's mission to develop and sustain leaders for a changing agriculture has been advanced through the generosity of dairy producers and breeders from all over the country. Our work to educate, train, and develop dairy youth and young adults has been strengthened. The Foundation is deeply grateful to all the donors of animals or embryos and to those who purchased."

When Tom Morris was asked why he agreed to lead the Futures Club Project he said, "The dairy industry has been very kind to both Sandy's family and mine for many generations, and we firmly believe that it's our duty to do what we can to insure the future of our Industry. We are pleased that many people agreed with us by joining the Futures Club."

The Holstein Foundation launched the Future Leaders Campaign, a five-year, $1 million capital campaign endowment initiative, in 2000. By building the Foundation's endowment now, it will strengthen the Foundation's ability to serve future generations of dairy leaders. At the conclusion of the Futures Club Project, $269,319 has been raised in gifts and pledges, to be matched by Holstein Association USA, for a total of $538,638. The Foundation is more than half way to its goal of raising $1 million by the end of 2004.

The Future Leaders Campaign is co-chaired by Don Bennink of North Florida Holsteins and Dick Chichester. The capital campaign leadership committee includes Henry Beneke, Dr. David Dickson, Robert Heilman, Greg Henderson, Judy Iager, Tom Morris, David Pierson, Jim Spreng, Bill Tom, and Elmo Wendorf Jr.

Southwest Pennsylvania To Host Forage Workshop

GREENSBURG (Westmoreland Co.) — Plan to attend the Southwest Pennsylvania Forage Workshop schedule to take place at the Westmoreland County Extension Office in Greensburg on Thursday, Dec. 12. The workshop will begin at 9 a.m.

Why should you attend? There are still many producers who ask each year whether or not they should be using a forage inoculant or additive on hay crop and/or corn silage. This workshop is featuring one of the leading researchers in the country on forage preservation. Dr. Limin Kung, professor of ruminant nutrition and microbiology from the University of Delaware is the featured speaker for the event.

Kung has conducted extensive research on microbial inoculants and chemical additives for forage crops. His research is now focusing on identifying methods that improve silage fermentation and aerobic stability.

In addition to Kung, Dr. Gabriella Varga, distinguished professor of animal science at Penn State will discuss "Transition Cow Nutrition and Management."

The afternoon session will allow participants to do some hands-on evaluations of their TMR using the new Penn State forage particle separator, check their grain preparation, and analyze some manure samples as a way of diagnosing rumen digestibility and forage and grain processing.

Cost of attending the workshop is $10 per person if you register by December 2, and $20 if you register after December 2.

For additional information and registration details, please call Eugene Schurman at (724) 465-3880 or email HYPERLINK "mailto:exs10@psu.edu" exs10@psu.edu.

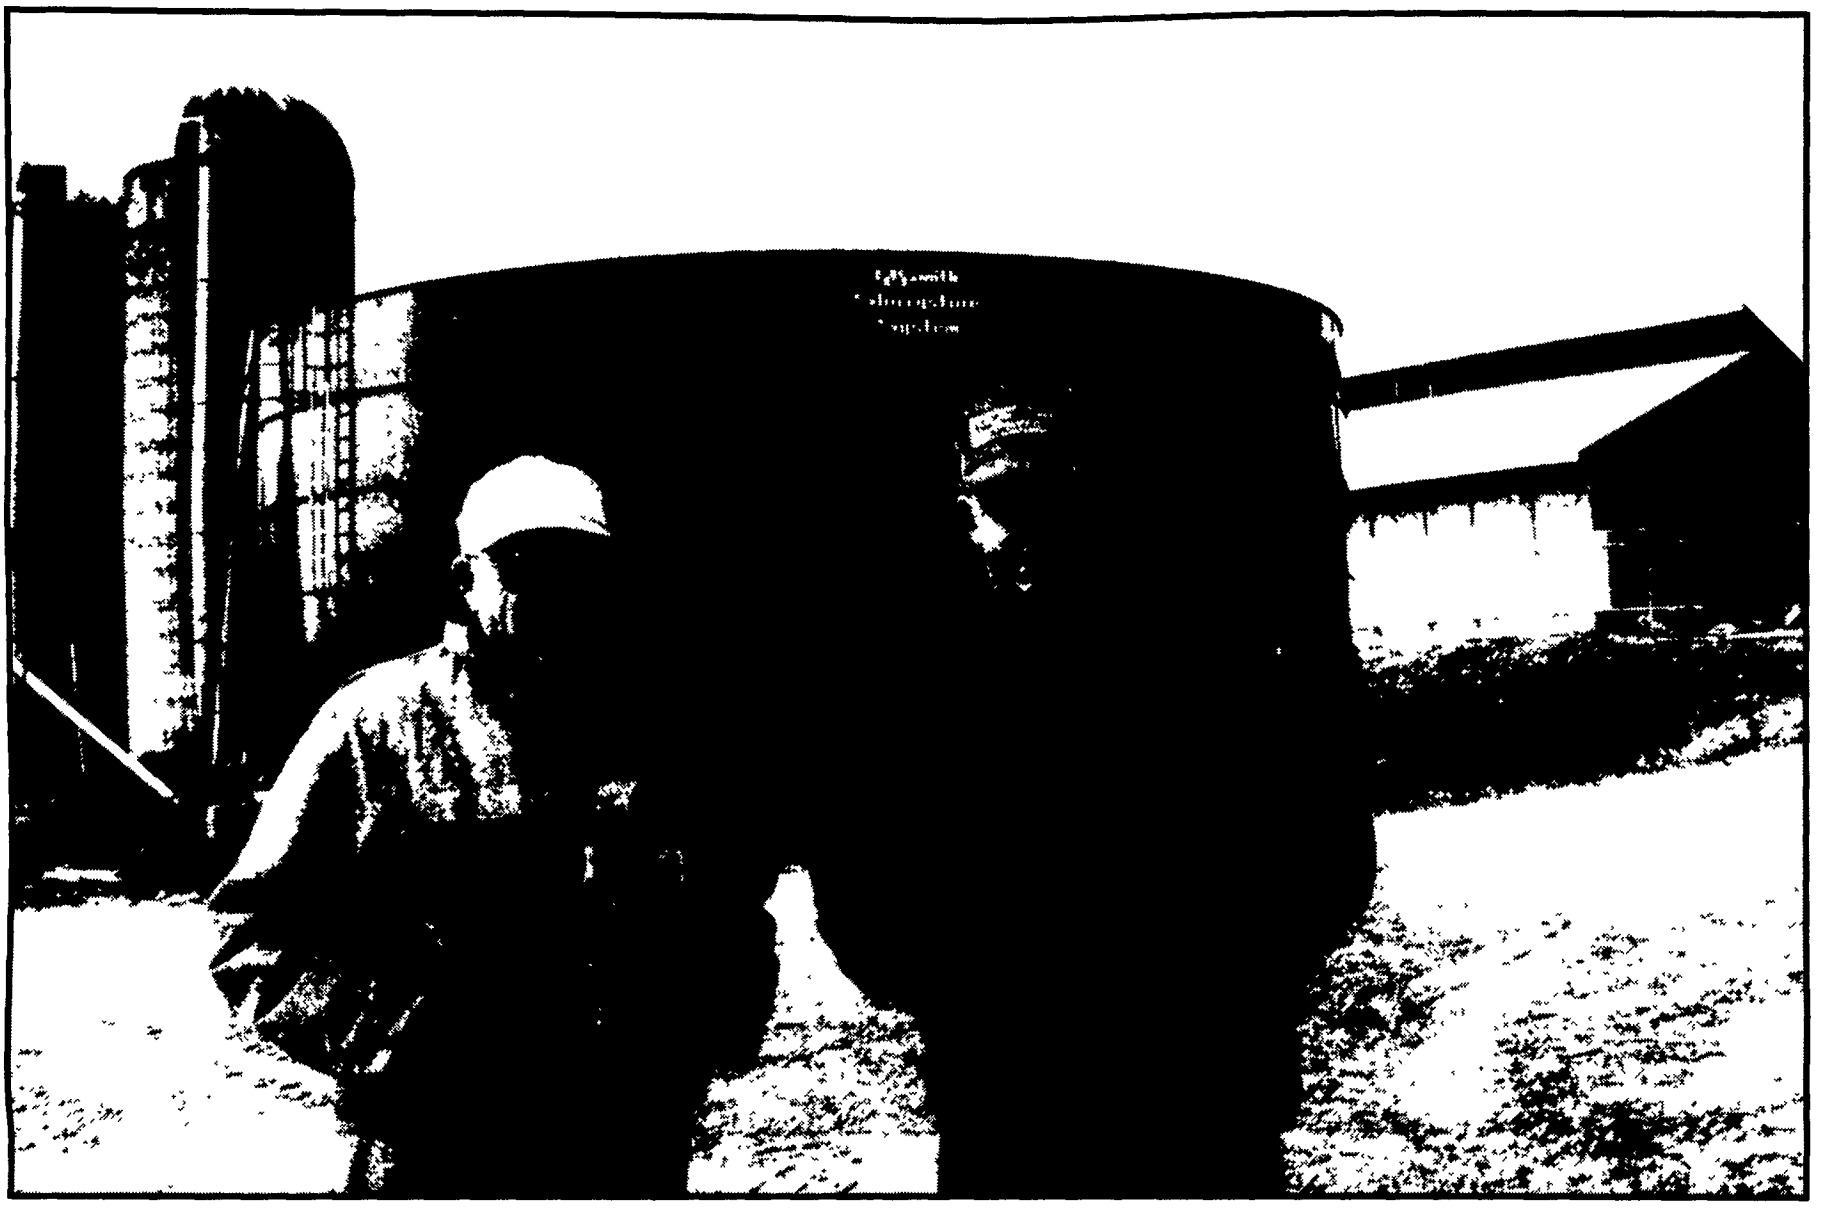
DECISION...
Slurrystore® or earthen pit?



Russell Jones and Vince Neville

Russell Jones has spent a lifetime interested in all aspects of dairy farming (President of the PA Holstein Association 1979-80), so when he and his tenant, Vince Neville, considered a nutrient management system for the farm in Bradford Co., Slurrystore was what they chose.

They looked extensively at earthen pits, but the inability to agitate, as well as excessive rainwater collection and general aesthetics, were not suitable.

Positive containment, general appearance, ease of agitation, and the ability to utilize small amounts of nutrients when needed all contributed to their decision to go Slurrystore.

Special thanks to the Bradford Co. NRCS office for their assistance and cooperation on this project.

Lancaster Farm Toy Show To Feature Barn Display Built To Scale

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — On Nov. 9, farm toy collectors from all over the east will converge on the Farm and Home Center in Lancaster.

Since the late 1970s grown men, and a few boys, have begun collecting farm-related toys and advertising. Most collectors collect toy tractors either in the popular 1/16th scale or pedal tractors. The hobby started in the mid-west and moved east, south and west.

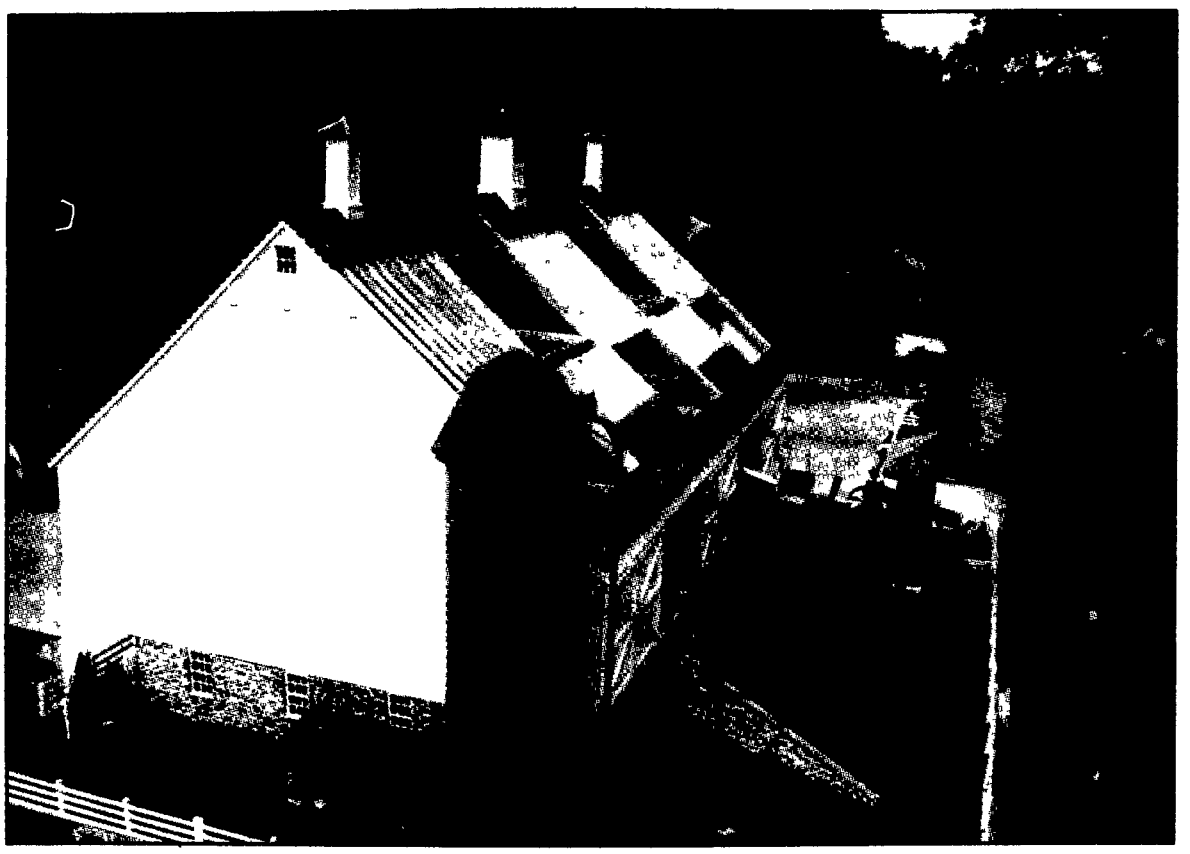
The Lancaster fall show is the longest continuous running show east of Ohio and draws more than 1,000 collectors to view the 50 or 60 display and sale tables of collectible farm toys and toy repair parts and collector books.

A special feature for the 20th show is the extremely detailed 1/16th scale layout of a central Pennsylvania farm designed and built by Terry Spahr from California. This display involves hundreds of hours of design and building to copy exact detail even down to the interior of the original barn.

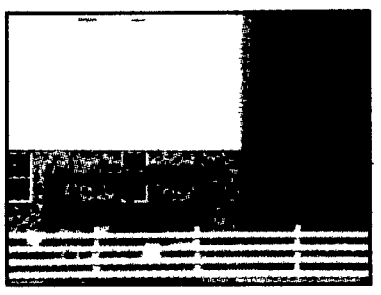
Another 20th anniversary toy show feature will be the offering of a licensed John Deere 2520 show tractor, made exclusively for this show and in limited quantities.

A local 4-H group will again operate the food concessions. Prototypes of the 2003 Pennsylvania Farm Show collectibles will be shown to the public for the first time.

The show is open from 9 a.m.-2 p.m. and is followed by a 4 p.m. toy tractor auction. For information, call Dave Nolt at (717) 768-3066.



The barn that is on display is a 1/16 replica of a Pennsylvania German barn. It was built in 1840 near Bowmansdale in Cumberland County. David Dobbs and his wife Katie, farmed Fertility Farm for 35 years until 1958 when they retired from farming and moved to town. The farm was left to deteriorate and the barn finally fell down in 1995. Terry Spahr, who built the display, played in that barn as a youngster and helped in the summer with the harvest. In 1998, after having become a toy farmer in California, Spahr decided to re-create the barn in miniature to be a part of his toy collection of 1/16 toys. Another uncle, Wilson Sipe, made drawings. They examined all of the old pictures together that could be found to add authenticity to the replica. Some of the original parts were salvaged and are on display with the barn. A slate from the roof, a tile from the silo and two pegs that held harness in the horse stable are all that remain.



"Another 20th anniversary toy show feature will be the offering of a licensed John Deere 2520 show tractor, made exclusively for this show and in limited quantities."

On Being a Farm Wife

(and other hazards)

Joyce Bupp

What was that noise?

Young heifers, their bellies full from breakfast, lounged around their pen in the old bank barn, chewing cuds. A few were curled up, their heads tucked back near their tails, napping on the fresh layer of newspaper pages tossed in not long before.

A friend once dubbed our heifer-pen paper recycling the "Teach A Calf To Read" livestock literacy campaign. Standing joke is that the newspapers we toss around for the calves to lay in not only soak up lots of moisture, it gives the girls something to read in bed.

Then, that faint noise again. Voices? Muted murmurings seemed to be coming from a back corner of the heifer pen. I looked closer. Two five-month-old heifers, Plum and Myrtle, lay close together, chewing their cuds. Or so it appeared, until I listened real carefully.

"Well, look at this," said Plum, glancing at the fresh paper under her muzzle. "More farmland is to be preserved. Boy, that always makes me happy to read about."

"Yeah, I guess so," replied Myrtle.

"You guess so?" asked Plum, with a surprised look in her big black eyes. "More land to keep for pasture? More for corn and hay? Hey, you like to eat. I know you do. Look at that haybelly on you."

"Well, thanks for the compliment!" huffed Myrtle, flipping her white ears front with irritation. "Then explain to me why I just read that, while you're going on about preserving farmland, some of the same places are making rules against big farms. How big is a 'big' farm, anyway?"

"Search me," puzzled Plum. "I guess one bigger than ours. Lemme' see that."

Plum stretched her neck over toward Myrtle, studying the printed sheets under Myrtle's muzzle.

"I think you're right," Plum admitted. "Wonder why that is, preserving farmland, then making rules about farms not being able to get bigger. Hey, I want my grandcalves in a couple of years to still be around this part of the country and have enough to eat. And last week I read something about how farmers will have to keep getting bigger to be efficient and stay in business. That they have to do that to compete."

"Yeah, I read that too," agreed Myrtle. "In fact, I wondered how many more mouths I was going to have to compete with at the trough."

"See, there you go again," said June. "Worrying about filling that haybelly."

"Cut that out!," retorted Myrtle, who stopped chewing her cud long enough to swing her head in June's direction. "It's just that I'll never be able to be one of those top milk producers if I don't get plenty to eat. And you and I can't have plenty to eat if there isn't enough land to grow my food, or if farmers can't expand to pay things like those taxes I keep reading are going up, or to bring their kids into the farm business."

"I know," agreed Plum. "Our farmers aren't spring chickens anymore, you know. And I don't know what will happen to our herd family."

"Well, I also read the other day that some places are making those houses they're building all over have bigger 'lots'," Myrtle added. "Lots of what?"

"I think 'lots' are what they build the houses on," Plum explained. "You know, the area around the houses where they grow grass, even if they don't have cows."

"Oh," said Myrtle, brightening. "Pasture. Maybe those bigger 'lots' around those houses will grow hay for our grandcalves to eat if there's less farmland in a couple of years. Or maybe they'll let them graze those 'lots'."

"I doubt it," Plum shook her ears. "You know how upset they get when anybody gets outside the fences here and gets on the grass."

"Well, then, maybe we'll just have to figure out some way to get our own 'lots' to make sure we have enough hay to eat in the future," proposed Myrtle, rising to her feet to go munch at the hayrack.

"Fine, go eat again," grumbled Plum. "And, while you're feeding your face, I'm going to look through these papers to see if I can find some of those credit card applications that they throw away all the time. If we're going to buy 'lots' so we have enough to eat we're going to need a bunch of them."

"Myrtle, do you think a hoof-print signature will work with those applications?"

Easier To Cut

To make hard squash (acorn or butternut) easier to cut, pierce the skin and microwave on high for 10 minutes, then cut and remove seeds and finish baking as you wish.

Report Card Reflex

Signs of autumn are all around us. Falling leaves, frosty lawns, pumpkins, goblins, hay rides, and crispy clear nights. And - report cards!

Every year in late fall, children bring home the first status report that sends many families into a tailspin. Not surprisingly, child welfare agencies report seeing an increase in the number of abuse referrals at this time of year.

Reading your child's report card can evoke a variety of feelings from great joy to deep disappointment. But parents can avoid the knee-jerk responses of report card day, if they prepare for the event and plan their responses.

Here are a few suggestions for avoiding the "report card reflex:" Wait until you are relaxed to read report cards. Resist the temptation to grab the report card and check it over as soon as your child comes in the door or just as you come home from work.

When you are tired or in the middle of a transition, you are less likely to think rationally, and you might over-react.

Plan for report card day. Realize that it is report card day, and that you will need some reserve energy both physical and emotional to deal with it. Your child may need your support and understanding, or she may be counting on you to share her excitement and celebrate with her.

Have realistic expectations. Perfect parents do not exist. Neither do perfect children or perfect students.

Mediocre grades are okay. This gives a child room to grow and improve. If you plan to see straight A's, you may be sorely disappointed.

Expect your child to have done his best. Expect that your child will be stronger in some subjects than in others. Recognize your child's strengths.

Set goals with your child. If you really believe that your child can do better, help her to set goals for the next marking period. Plan a small celebration or a special event for when the goal is reached.

Make sure goals are realistic. Going from a "D" to an "A" by the next report card is probably a bit lofty, but bringing that grade to a "C" or "B" may be an achievable goal.

Focus on your child's accomplishments. Spend more time talking about and celebrating your child's successes and "good" grades. Help him feel proud of what he did so far. Use words like "You did it!" or "I knew you could get that 'B'!"

Keep things in perspective. Report cards are a benchmark of progress for a relatively short period of time. They are not going to determine your child's educational destiny. Grades often reflect many other factors beside a child's ability to study and take tests. Teaching style, learning style, interest in the subject, environment, and time of day of class all contribute to a child's ability to perform well in a given area.

If you have concerns about your child's performance in school or if you see a sudden change in your child's grades, set up an appointment with the teacher or the guidance counselor. Declining grades can be a sign of a number of issues—anything from being in the class that meets just before lunch to the possibility of substance abuse. Regardless of the cause, children need their parents' love and support.

Report cards can be an opportunity for families to increase communication with each other, set goals together, and plan strategies to deal with challenges.

Well Preserved

The Well Preserved news column is prepared by Lancaster County Cooperative Extension. It includes food preservation information and questions.

Featuring
Cupboard Storage

If you know how to store food properly and how long it will keep, you will waste fewer food dollars while keeping food looking and tasting good. Proper storage will also help retain nutrients and keep the food safe to eat.

Store foods in your coolest cabinets away from appliances which produce heat. Put dishes or pans—not food—in the cabinets over the range, near the dishwasher or by the refrigerator exhaust. The temperature is too warm for food in those places. Foods in glass jars should be kept in a dark place to avoid the loss of vitamins that are sensitive to light.

Bread keeps fresh if stored at room temperature in a cool, dry place. Refrigeration hastens staling.

However, in hot humid weather, bread kept for more than two or three days should be refrigerated to retard mold growth. Store brown-and-serve breads, English muffins, and other high-moisture breads in the refrigerator. Keep hard-crust breads such as French bread at room temperature and use within one or two days of purchase. Hard-crust breads are made with water rather than milk and dry quickly.

Most breads are packaged in moisture and vapor-proof wraps (polyethylene bags), which are good for storage. When other containers are used to store bread, they should be rinsed with a baking soda solution after cleaning to remove odors that might be absorbed by the containers.

Store flour in an airtight container. Flour takes up moisture and also dries out easily. If you buy a large bag of flour, leave it in the bag and store it in a large covered container. In hot humid weather, buy flour in small amounts and keep it in the refrigerator or freezer. Flour stored in a warm place is likely to attract insects. Whole wheat flour should be stored in the refrigerator year round. Natural oils in whole wheat flour cause it to turn rancid quickly at room temperature. Flour absorbs odors and should not be stored near soap powders, medicines, or other items with strong odors. Brown sugar is a frustration when it is too hard to measure out. One remedy for hard brown sugar is to spread it out as best you can on a cookie sheet and heat in a slow oven (250F to 300F) until softened.

Then remove the sugar from the oven and measure it while still warm; it will harden again when cooled. To keep brown sugar soft, put it in a plastic bag, tight fitting plastic container, or in a jar with a tight lid.

Slipping an apple slice or piece of bread in with the brown sugar will keep it soft. Check it occasionally to see that the apple or bread has not dried out or become moldy.

A few fruits and vegetables are suitable for cupboard storage. Dry onions, potatoes, rutabagas, and winter squash usually keep best in cool dark places around 50F to 60F. Onions and white potatoes will sprout in the spring; so during the spring, only buy what you can use in a week. Don't store potatoes and onions together because the moisture from the potatoes will cause the onions to spoil.

Do not refrigerate sweet potatoes. Temperatures below 50F cause starch changes in sweet potatoes which alter their flavor.

While some fruits and vegetables may start out at room temperature, longer term storage needs to be in the refrigerator. Ripen tomatoes at room temperature out of direct sunlight. When ripe, store tomatoes in the refrigerator.

Ripen bananas at room temperature to desired maturity. Ripened bananas may be refrigerated for two to three days to prevent further ripening.

Store apples in a cool place (below 60F) during the fall following harvest. After this time, apples deteriorate rapidly and should be kept in the refrigerator. Ripen firm avocados and cantaloupe at room temperature. Allow three to five days for avocados; two to four days for cantaloupe.

What can you do with those crackers, cereals, or snacks that get stale? Spread them onto a cookie sheet and place them in a 425F oven for a few minutes.They will be crisp and ready to use again provided they have no off-flavors.

While canned goods have a long shelf life, they don't maintain their quality for ever. Rotate canned goods and try not to keep canned foods more than one year. Canned fruit juices should be used within nine months. The shelf life of canned goods will be shortened when they are stored above 70F. Old canned goods may be safe to eat, but their color, flavor, texture, and/or nutritive value may have deteriorated. Store canned foods in a dry place at moderately cool, but not freezing temperatures.

Canned goods that become frozen may experience a slight breakdown of texture, but a single freezing and thawing is not serious unless the seal is broken.

Danger signs for canned foods involve bulging, denting, or rusting of cans. Bulging indicates spoilage inside the can-throw it away without opening the can or tasting the food. Do not buy cans with dents on the side seam or on the top or bottom rim. Check carefully for leakage-especially around the seam.

Throw leaky cans away. Also check rusty cans for leakage as the rust may have penetrated the can.

When you buy staples and canned goods, date food packages and use the oldest first. Buy fresh-looking packages. Dusty cans or torn labels may indicate old stock.

"Spotlight on Cupboard Storage," a publication that includes a listing of the shelf life of common foods, is available on line at www.agcom.purdue.edu/AgCom/Pubs/CFS/CFS-423-W.pdf or you may request a copy by contacting Penn State Cooperative Extension, Lancaster County, 1383 Arcadia Road, Rm.1, Lancaster, PA 17601 or call (717) 394-6851 on Wednesdays 10 a.m.—1 p.m. and ask for the food preservation home economist.

4-H Offering Embryology, Food Production Education Program

SPRINGFIELD (Delaware Co.) — Embryology and Food PEP (Production Education Program) are two of the programs being offered by Delaware County 4-H for homeschoolers and other interested groups. Both programs meet numerous Pennsylvania academic standards.

For embryology, the chick-hatching program, participants learn about why and what is happening as an embryo develops. They also learn avian (bird) anatomy, developmental processes and stages of growth, scientific processes, and hands-on experience with living creatures, including caring for and respecting their value.

4-H provides fertile chicken eggs that are hatched in incubators. Each household or group receives eggs, student books, and teacher materials for a complete chick hatching experience.

The cost of all materials plus the rental of an incubator is $40. If you own an incubator, the cost is $25. 4-H also has incubators for purchase for $65.

The following two sessions in Embryology are available: Nov. 7-22 and Nov. 26-Dec. 13.

Food PEP (Production Education Program) is also being offered, which explores plant and animal agriculture. Newly revised student books contain farm history, vocabulary, and related activities. Included is a nutrition section including the food guide pyramid, grains and produce, as well as sections on all the animals found on the 4-H farm: cattle, swine, poultry, and sheep.

A video is included with the program that costs $25 per household or group. An optional related spring field trip is available to the 4-H farm in Newtown Square.

Call Susan Baraldi at (610) 690-7663 for information. Leave your address for registration materials to be sent to you.

Marinate steak in 4 tablespoons water, 1 teaspoon onion powder, and parsley for at least 4 hours. Salt and pepper steak. Wrap the chunks with ¼ strip thin bacon. DEER HEART

Boil the heart in a large kettle for 30 minutes on full boil. Remove from pot and cool. Cut the heart into small strips. Get a large mason jar. A half gallon is best.

In a pot, mix equal parts of water and vinegar (2 cups each) and bring to a hard boil. Add 10 crushed garlic cloves. Add one teaspoon allspice. Finally add the juice left over from a jar of Claussen dill pickles. (I always save a jar of this when deer season is approaching). Boil this for 10 minutes. Mix it together. Add the deer slices. Place on a canning lid but does not have to seal. Refrigerate for a week. Send off to deer camp even if the camp is your farm.

Many beef recipes can be successfully used by substituting venison for the beef. Cooking times may need to be adjusted.

Featured Recipe

"I have cooked game — even groundhog — beside my mom since I was a little girl," writes Priscilla Engle.

Her dad and brother were great hunters. As a teen-ager, Priscilla hunted deer — "until I discovered boys," she wrote.

In college, she met her best friend — a city boy. After taking him to the mountains and lakes, and buying him a shot gun and a fishing pole, he passed a few of Priscilla's requirements, and she married him. In fact, Priscilla and Bill Engle have been married 35 years.

"And he is quite a good hunter too," Priscilla said.

Priscilla sent in a wonderful collection of her favorites that hunters will certainly savor. Check out the recipes submitted by Glory View Farm, where Priscilla and her husband find rejuvenation. This recipe uses wine. Remember the alcohol evaporates when cooked, but if you prefer not to use wine, you can substitute it for grape, cranberry, or apple juice or broth or water.

DEER IN WINE

2 cups red wine vinegar
2 cups white wine
3 cloves crushed garlic
2 tablespoons chopped Italian parsley
2 whole cloves
1 large chopped onion
4 pounds venison — rack, loin or leg
Salt and pepper
3 tablespoons flour
4 slices salt pork bacon
1 medium onion, sliced
1 cup water

Combine vinegar and wine in a saucepan. Bring to a boil and remove from heat. Add garlic, parsley, cloves, and chopped onion. Cool.

Put the venison in a glass container and pour the now cooled marinade over it. Let stand in refrigerator one day. Turn the meat over about every 2-4 hours. When you are ready to roast the venison, remove from marinade. Pat dry. Sprinkle with salt, pepper, and flour. Place in large baking pan. Cover with sliced onions and salt pork. Brown in 450-degree oven. When browned, add a cup of the marinade over the meat. Cover. Bake for 2 hours in 350-degree oven. Add additional marinade if the meat looks dry or sticky. Enjoy.

Consuming Thoughts

Does your family want tasty, healthy meals, but also want them on the table in 30 minutes or less.

Sound impossible?

Not if you try these timesaving tips and recipes:

• Stock your freezer and cabinets with easy-to-fix staples like canned or frozen vegetables, lean ground beef, fish fillets, boneless chicken breasts, pasta and rice.

• If time is more important than money, buy pre-sliced, diced and pre-washed fruit and vegetables form the produce section or salad bar. Buy sliced, shredded or grated cheeses, and check the meat department for filets, kabobs or marinated meats.

• Jot down menu ideas in advance. This way you have a game plan and can defrost your meat in the refrigerator overnight. Planning can also help to save time when shopping and reduce the number of trips to the grocery store. Save more time by not shopping at peak times.

• Cook foods quickly. Steaming, microwaving, broiling or stir-frying can save you time, fat and calories.

• When you do have time to cook, double your recipes and freeze extra for another day.

For speed and convenience try these pasta favorites in the microwave. Pasta is low in fat and sodium and has no cholesterol.

You can cook eight ounces of dry pasta (any shape) into two cups of water in the same amount of time as stove top cooking requires. You don't have to boil the water first or drain the pasta after cooking. Adding some shredded cheese to the cooked pasta will absorb excess starch.

Refrigerated or frozen filled pastas such as ravioli or tortellini cook faster in the microwave then on the stove. Look for microwave directions on the package. Also try precooked, instant noodles in microwave dishes.

Some tips for microwaving pasta casseroles:

• Select round or oval microwavable casserole dishes with lids.

• For even heat distribution, stir casseroles once or twice during cooking.

• For dishes like lasagna which can't be stirred, shield the short ends of the dish with 2 inch strips of foil for part of the cooking time to prevent overcooking.

• Elevate the dish on a rack or inverted bowl to help the bottom to cook.

• Rotate the dish after half the cooking time to insure even cooking.

• Let casseroles stand after removing from the microwave oven to complete the cooking, melt cheese and allow flavors to blend.

ANSWER — Margaret Emerick, Boswell, wanted recipes for banana gobs and for pumpkin gobs. (Note: Gobs are another name for whoopie pies). Thanks to Fern Schlegel, Dalmatia, for sending both recipes requested.

Banana Gobs

4 cups flour
1 cup shortening
3 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon vanilla
3 eggs
1 cup buttermilk
1 cup mashed bananas
½ teaspoon salt
2 cups sugar
1 teaspoon baking soda

Cream shortening, sugar, eggs, and vanilla. Add dry ingredients and buttermilk, and mix well. Add mashed bananas. Drop by teaspoon onto lightly greased baking sheet. Bake at 350 degrees for 10-12 minutes until lightly browned.

Creamy Filling:
1 cup milk
5 tablespoons flour

Cook milk and flour together until thick. Cool. Cream together:
1 cup Crisco shortening
1 cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons vanilla

Add the cooled mixture and cream until light and fluffy. Place between two cooled cookies.

Pumpkin Gobs

2 cups brown sugar
1 cup vegetable oil
1½ cups cooked, mashed pumpkin
2 eggs
3 cups flour
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon vanilla
1½ teaspoon cinnamon
½ tablespoon ginger
½ tablespoon ground cloves

Cream together sugar and oil. Add pumpkin and eggs. Add flour, salt, baking powder, baking soda, vanilla, and spices. Mix. Drop by heaping teaspoons onto greased cookie sheet.

Bake at 350 degrees for 10-12 minutes. Make sandwiches from two cookies filled with your favorite filling.

¾ cup boiling water
½ teaspoon baking soda

Top part:
1½ cups flour
¼ cup butter
½ cup brown sugar
Unbaked pastry for 9-inch pie shell

Dissolve soda and molasses in boiling water. In another bowl, combine sugar and flour and rub in butter to make crumbs. Pour the liquid into an unbaked pie shell and top with crumb mixture. Bake at 375 degrees for 35 minutes.

ANSWER — A Lebanon reader requested a recipe for pizza sauce that tastes like the Ragu brand. Thanks to Lee Laverty, Mount Joy, for sending this one that she says tastes like the Ragu brand. It is made with a food mill. Using a food processor to puree the sauce will not remove tomato seeds. If you are not comfortable using anchovies in a canned sauce, omit them —it will affect the flavor — but in any case, don't leave out the saffron, as it adds a wonderful flavor. An alternative to canning the sauce is freezing sauce in 1-cup freezer containers.

Pizza Sauce Like Ragu

10 large cloves garlic, peeled
¼ cup extra virgin olive oil
½ heaping teaspoon hot pepper flakes
1¼ cups chopped white onion
4 anchovy fillets (use salt-packed if you can)
¼ cup tomato paste
½ cup dry Vermouth
Small pinch saffron threads, crumbled
10 cups peeled, chopped ripe tomatoes (5 pounds or about 12 medium-sized tomatoes)
10 fresh basil leaves

In a large pan, cook garlic cloves in oil over low heat until golden. Stir in red pepper flakes and onion, and cook over medium-low heat until onion is softened and gilted, about 10 minutes. Add anchovies and mash until dissolved. Stir in tomato paste, Vermouth, and saffron, and bring to a simmer, cooking mixture for 10 minutes. Carefully add chopped tomatoes. Simmer, stirring occasionally, for about 45 minutes. Force mixture through food mill with medium disk, into another large pan (keep cranking until there is only dry material left in the mill). Add freshly ground pepper to taste. Cook over medium-low heat for another 45 minutes, until thickened. Chop fresh basil and stir into sauce. One cup of sauce is sufficient for 16-inch pizza.

ANSWER — Melva Walters, Martinsburg, W.V., sent this recipe that had been requested by a reader.

Hot Dog Relish

8 large onions
1 medium head cabbage
10 green tomatoes
12 sweet, green peppers
6 red sweet peppers
4-5 carrots
½ cup salt
6 cups sugar
1 tablespoon mustard seed
1 tablespoon celery seed
1½ teaspoon turmeric
4 cups vinegar

Grind vegetables with coarse blade. Mix in ½ cup salt, let stand overnight. Drain and rinse twice, add other ingredients and let simmer 3 minutes. Pack in jars and process 10-12 minutes.

ANSWER — For the reader who wanted a recipe for green tomato mincemeat, here is one from Luci Essig, Bernville, and a cake that is made using the mincemeat.

Green Tomato Mincemeat

Take ½ peck (about 15 medium tomatoes) and put through a food grinder. Add one tablespoon salt and let drain overnight. In morning, measure drippings and throw away. Add water equal to the amount of drippings discarded. Add:
2½ pounds brown sugar
2 pounds seedless raisins
1 tablespoon ground cloves
1 tablespoon nutmeg
1 tablespoon ginger
1 tablespoon cinnamon
8-ounces vinegar

Boil together for one hour and put into pint containers. Freeze until needed for future use. Makes 6 pints or more.

Green Tomato Cake

1 cup granulated sugar
½ cup butter
1 egg
2 teaspoons baking soda dissolved in ½ cup boiling water
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 teaspoon cloves
1 pint green tomato mincemeat
2 cups flour (to make a stiff dough)

Bake in a greased and floured tube pan at 350 degrees for about one hour. You can also use other types of baking pans (cupcake, oblong, etc. Adjust time).

Not All Treated Cider Is Pasteurized

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Just a few years ago, apple ciders and juices were thought to be acidic enough to be protected from bacterial problems. But in 1996, unpasteurized apple juice was blamed for an outbreak of Escherichia coli O157:H7 in California, causing one death and 66 illnesses. Also that year, the Northeast suffered outbreaks of cider-related E. coli and Cryptosporidium parvum.

Since then, the Food and Drug Administration has encouraged cider producers to pasteurize or otherwise treat their product. Those who don't must include a warning that "This product has not been pasteurized and, therefore, may contain harmful bacteria that can cause serious illness in children, the elderly, and persons with weakened immune systems."

To avoid the label, the FDA says producers must treat cider to achieve a 5-log reduction in pathogens. Each log decreases bacteria by 90 percent. So, if you start with 100,000 cells of bacteria, a 1-log reduction would mean 10,000 would be left after treatment. A 2-log reduction would take it down to 1,000 cells. A 5-log reduction would take it down to one cell after treatment.

Pasteurization is a sure-fire route to a 5-log reduction, but some consumers think it changes cider's flavor. So, scientists went to work to find alternatives. Ultraviolet (UV) light treatment is one approved alternative that some producers use.

Another alternative is ozonation. In this process, ozone, created by passing compressed air by UV lights, is bubbled through cider. The ozone acts as an oxidizing agent, destroying bacterial cells. The ozone itself is used during this process and is not present in the final juice product.

Although the process has been approved, scientists aren't quite certain exactly how it works. Apple researchers with the Ohio Agricultural Research and Development Center are currently conducting studies on the process to learn more.

How Much Fish Must I Eat?

COLUMBUS, Ohio — "I'm hearing a lot about omega-3 fatty acids found in fatty fish. But from reading labels on cans of tuna, it looks like I can get more omega-3 by eating my baseball glove." Someone asked Chow Line personell at Ohio State Extension, "How much tuna do I have to eat to do me any good?"

Although a baseball glove does sound tempting, experts say that fatty fish are the best source of omega-3 fatty acids, which carry many health benefits including reduced risk of heart attack, prevention of stroke, prevention of depression and reduced aggression.

Experts recommend 400 to 650 milligrams of omega-3 a day, or 3 to 4 grams a week, to get these benefits. This translates into two meals a week of oil-rich fish.

Unfortunately, canned tuna has a wide range of omega-3s. Albacore tuna tends to have more. You would need to eat at least 14 ounces of canned albacore tuna a week to get the lower recommended amount.

If that's too much tuna for you, try cooking up one of these for a week's worth of omega-3: 6 ounces fresh mackerel; 10 ounces canned sardines; 11 ounces pickled herring; 12 ounces fresh salmon; or 13 ounces canned salmon.

If you find fatty fish foul, you can also get your weekly level with: 3.5 ounces of mayonnaise; 3 ounces of blue cheese salad dressing; 3 ounces of black walnuts; or 5 ounces of cooked soybeans. Note: these are not portion sizes.

Omega-3 fatty acids are one type of unsaturated fat important in immune system function and vision. Research indicates a possible link between diets higher in omega-3 with reduced rates of cancer and heart disease. The most common type of omega-3 fatty acid is alpha-linolenic acid, found in many types of salad and cooking oils, especially soybean or canola oil.

The other types, eicosapentaenoic acid (EPA) and docosahexaenoic acid (DHA) are both found in fatty fish.

You can get too much of a good thing. If you consume more than 4 grams of omega-3 a day, you're at a higher risk of uncontrolled bleeding and hemorrhagic stroke. That's no good.

Unfortunately, no nutritional information was available for "baseball glove." If this is your preferred source of omega-3, I suggest soaking it in 10.5 ounces of chicken fat, and feast away!

Ida's Notebook

by

Ida Risser

Public sales are conducted for many reasons. Some are conducted to sell collections of coins, guns or farm machinery. Sometimes real estate is sold to settle an estate. other times antiques are the drawing card for a big sale.

The auctioneer keeps the sale lively with chatter as he sells each item. Some auctioneers have a following of people who attend most of their sales. Spring and fall are busy times for public sales.

Preparing for a sale is a great deal of work. There are boxes and boxes of trinkets that have accumulated over the years. It often takes weeks to get ready for a sale. I've helped to empty three different houses in preparation for a sale. It is an interesting job if you have the time to devote to it.

Sometimes at a sale, you must buy something you do not want in order to get what you do want. One unusual thing that I saw at a sale was a barrel filled with crutches. Another unusual item was a complete set of good dishes, which sold for $1.

Recently I went to a sale in another county to buy some family antiques for our children. They simply live too far away to get the spinning wheel, yarn winder, dough box or quilts that were used by their ancestors. So, I sat and bought these things for them. But, the one thing that I got for myself, I forgot and left it at the sale. It was a struggle to find it as someone else had carted it off.

My son bought a beautiful very old settee and also a schnitzel bunk that his great-grandfather used to make coffin lids. It is always interesting to have a story to go along with an antique.

Stream MAPS

of Pennsylvania, New York, New England, New Jersey, Ohio, & Maryland/Delaware

The STREAM MAP OF PENNSYLVANIA was completed in 1965 after a thirty-year effort by Howard Higbee, a former Penn State Professor.

The map is known as the LOST STREAM MAP to some anglers.

Professor Higbee succeeded in creating a map of the highest detail possible...a map that shows every stream and lake. He painstakingly plotted by hand the location of 45,000 miles of streams onto a 3 by 5 foot map.

The map sold extremely well--until it was lost several years later. Incredibly, the printer entrusted with the original drawing and printing plates declared bankruptcy, then carelessly hauled Higbee's 30 years of work to a landfill.

The few remaining dog-eared copies became a prized fisherman's possession. Professor Higbee was offered $400 for one of his last maps. And state agencies were forced to keep their copies under lock and key.

Experts told Professor Higbee that reprints were impossible, because the maps were printed in non-photographic blue.

Then, in 1991, at the age of 91, Howard Higbee's dream came true. Computers made it possible to reprint the map. Howard said, "I never thought I'd live to see this day."

Why every angler and boater needs these maps

It is estimated that 10% of all the anglers catch 90% of the fish. Regardless of which group you fall into...there's a sure way to up your odds...simply try new fishing waters. Now, with this map you can find hidden streams and lakes.

Pennsylvania, New York, New England, New Jersey, Ohio and Maryland/Delaware are loaded with great fishing holes...many of them overlooked. Thousands of miles of streams. rivers and lakes are now easy-to-locate on one map.

The 3-foot-by-5-foot Pennsylvania map shows 45,000 miles of streams plus lakes. The 3 1/2-foot-by-4 1/2-foot New York map shows 65,000 miles of streams plus lakes. The 3-foot-by-4-foot New England map shows 36,000 miles of streams plus lakes. The 2 1/2-foot-by-3-foot New Jersey map shows 8,300 miles of streams plus lakes. The 3-foot-by-3-foot Ohio Map shows 29,000 miles of streams plus lakes. The 2-foot-by-3 1/2-foot Maryland/Delaware map shows 12,000 miles of streams plus lakes.

Professor Higbee's Stream Maps are the first and only highly detailed maps of their kind.

Kids Become Entrepreneurs At Bedford's Fall Foliage Festival

LINDA WILLIAMS
Bedford Co. Correspondent

BEDFORD (Bedford Co.) — Entrepreneur is a big word for a little kid. According to the dictionary, entrepreneur means one who operates and assumes the risk in a business venture in the expectation of gaining a profit.

The label is generally applied to adults who begin a business. But recently some kids had the opportunity to become entrepreneurs at Bedford's Fall Foliage Festival. Every year the annual event grows with a few more craft stands, more tempting food venders, and by the swelling number of people who have discovered this fun time in the Allegheny Mountains.

It is the perfect opportunity for kids to strut their talents and pick up some spare change for Christmas shopping.

Jennifer Ward, Lacey and Ben Sollenberger and their fall stand. Many of their items were produced from produce grown on their farm.

An overall group picture of young entrepreneurs at Bedford's Fall Foliage Festival.

Kamryn's Candy and Kalyn's Magnets provided interesting shopping experiences.

Fall Foliage is always held the first two weekends in October. On the second weekend, a portion of Fort Bedford Park is set aside for young crafters selling anything from self-done watercolors to bat houses or hair wraps. The Raystown branch of the Juniata River provides a mirror image for the fall colors, canoers paddle lazily in these last warm days of the year and toes tap to the wandering musicians. It all adds up to the perfect setting for shopping.

To keep kids from dealing with change, a parent offers to work the cash box, keeping track by number of all the sales.

"It's wonderful how many people patronize the kids," says Dr. Katherine Erlichman, one of the volunteer parents at this year's event.

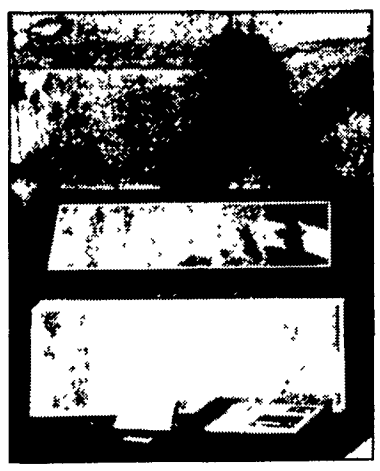
"Not only do we teach the children about entreprenaurship, they also learn to create items to sell," says Bev Lingenfelter, whose son, Ethan created bat houses complete with an explanation. "Bats eat mosquitoes which spread the West Nile Virus," he explains. "It is important to provide a place for the bats."

James Trail and Molly Tolbert also build bird houses. It has become a real business for these two ambitious youngsters who participate in the Corn Festival at Shippensburg.

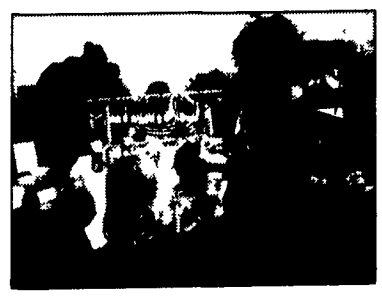
Sara Erlichman sold pottery and paintings from her summer art classes.

Albert Burnham of Morrison's Cove had copies of a painting he created right after September 11, 2001. The painting depicts a plane flying into the World Trade Center and emerging as a victorious eagle.

Other items made with little fingers and offered for sale at the children's portion of the festival included: flag pins, hair wraps, paper weights, puppets, crocheted bags and pot holders, dried flower arrangements, candy baskets, and key chains.

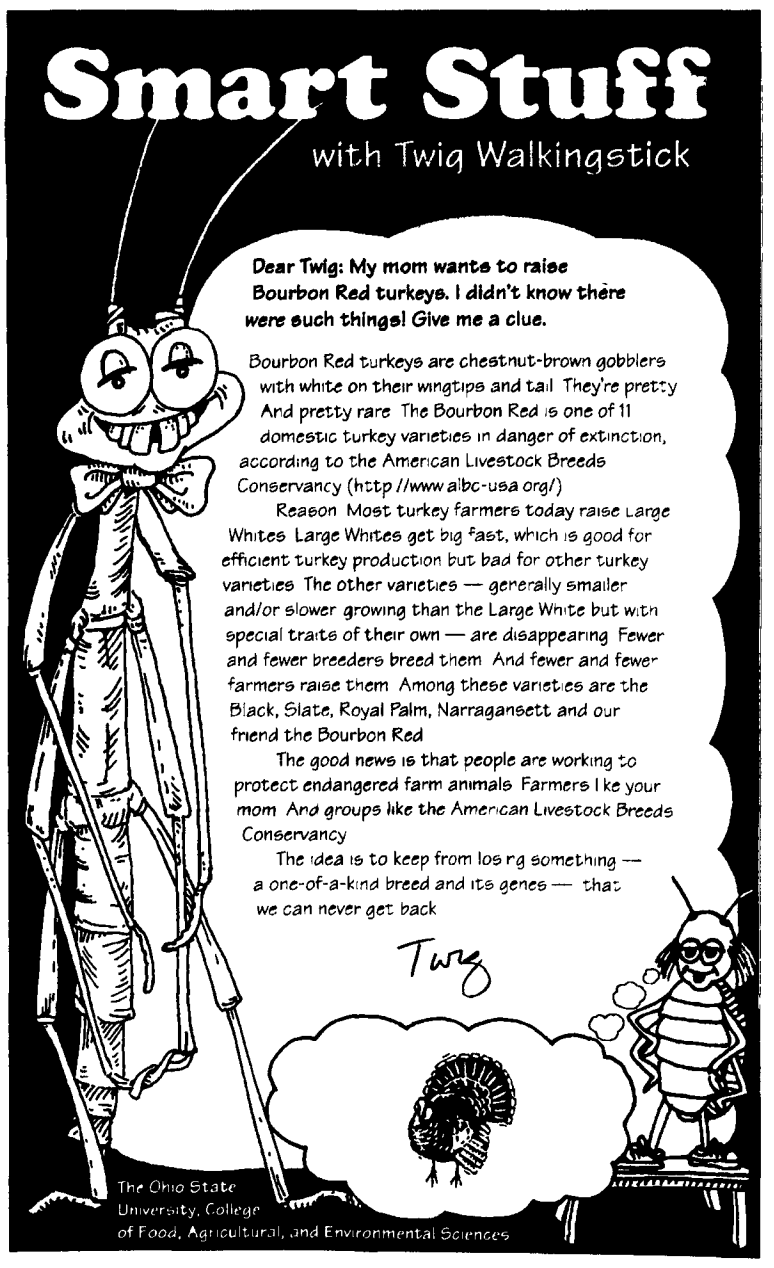


Linda Burnham shows the painting her son created after 9/11. He has had them made into prints.



Shoppers purchase items from Nicole Feight.

Ethan Lingenfelter of Bedford is proud of the bat houses he made.



Smart Stuff
with Twig Walkingstick
Dear Twig: My mom wants to raise Bourbon Red turkeys. I didn't know there were such things! Give me a clue.
Bourbon Red turkeys are chestnut-brown gobblers with white on their wingtips and tail They're pretty And pretty rare The Bourbon Red is one of 11 domestic turkey varieties in danger of extinction, according to the American Livestock Breeds Conservancy (http //www albc-usa org/)
Reason Most turkey farmers today raise Large Whites Large Whites get big fast, which is good for efficient turkey production but bad for other turkey varieties The other varieties — generally smaller and/or slower growing than the Large White but with special traits of their own — are disappearing Fewer and fewer breeders breed them And fewer and fewer farmers raise them Among these varieties are the Black, Slate, Royal Palm, Narragansett and our friend the Bourbon Red
The good news is that people are working to protect endangered farm animals Farmers like your mom And groups like the American Livestock Breeds Conservancy
The idea is to keep from losing something — a one-of-a-kind breed and its genes — that we can never get back

School Milk Makes The Grade

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Results of a year-long pilot test developed and conducted by the dairy checkoff show that school milk sales increased 22 percent among secondary school students and 15 percent among elementary school students after milk packaging, flavor, variety, and temperature enhancements were made.

The study involved more than 100,000 students in 146 elementary, middle and high schools in 12 U.S. markets. The pilot test clearly showed that more children will opt to drink more milk when offered an enhanced milk product as part of the school meal program.

Milk Vending Machine Grants Available To Local Schools

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Milk vending machines could be coming to a school near you.

After extensive milk vending machine testing in schools, the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program and Mid-Atlantic Dairy Association are working together to offer $1,000 grants to schools that purchase or lease milk vending machines in western and southeastern Pennsylvania. By adding milk to the line-up of items vended at school, students have a healthy beverage choice that is fun to drink and jam-packed with all the essential nutrients they need for healthy bodies.

In 2000, the American Dairy Association and Dairy Council Mid East conducted a milk vending machine research study with Smith's Dairy of Orrville, Ohio. In the 2001 national school milk vending test, Dairy Management Inc. verified the findings that kids will drink more milk if it's served cold and available in a variety of flavors.

The milk vending machines do just that. During the two studies, the average school sold 280 units of milk each week, most of which was flavored. That is an additional 10,080 units sold during a 36-week school year.

Urban Upbringing Didn't Erase Desire For Agricultural Careers

LOU ANN GOOD
Food And Family
Features Editor

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Both Amy and Andy Bradford grew up in urban communities. They tried to stuff their fascination for animals and country life into hobbies and interests, and find compatible careers for their city-bred upbringings.

They couldn't.

The desire to follow their passions for agriculture increased during their college years. Both made individual choices that have resulted in them finding niches in Lancaster County agriculture. Only after college graduation and with careers firmly entrenched in agriculture did the two find each other.

"Andy and I are living proof that one doesn't need to grow up on a farm to work in agriculture," Amy said. "If you have the desire and iniative to pursue an agricultural field — you can."

Amy is assistant vice president for the Penn Ag Council, and her husband is president of the Lancaster County Poultry Association.

Amy and Andy Bradford, who grew up in urban environments, independently sought agriculture careers, and later found each other. The couple believe their shared agricultural interests enhance their marriage.

Amy grew up in college communities where her father was in academia. She wanted a horse, so her parents allowed her to join a 4-H club. But the horse never materialized, and Amy discovered sheep. She was thrilled when an acquaintance offered a spot in his barn for her to raise 4-H market lamb projects for several years. She loved visiting farms and working with animals.

Her family encouraged her to attend one of the Big 10 colleges, and Amy selected Michigan State University. But after the first semester, Amy knew studying history wasn't for her. In desperation, she flipped through a listing of course choices. The words "agriculture and national resource communications" grabbed her attention.

"It was the first time I realized that I could actually make a career in agricutural even if I didn't grow up on a farm," Amy said.

She enjoyed the small classes, the hands-on activities, and not being a number despite attending a large university. She worked with the college media in news writing and photojournalism.

After graduation, Amy filled an internship with the Pennsylvania Beef Council. That's when she first met Andy Bradford — who later became her husband.

He had grown up in Philadelphia. He figured since he loved animals that becoming a veterinarian was the closest he could get to an agriculture career. But at Penn State, Andy switched to ag science courses.

"I had nutrition classes in college and soon developed a knack for it," Bradford said of deciphering nutritional needs in birds.

As a college senior, Bradford was elected president of the Poultry Science Club, which seems to have destined him for a poultry-related career. Since then he has been employed by Pennfield Feeds, Perdue, and Wenger Feeds. He works with independent layer customers for Wenger Feeds.

Bradford's experience in working with different aspects of the poultry industry has prepared him for his position as Lancaster County Poultry Association president. This is his second term. Working with broiler and egg production and with both independent and contract growers enables him to grasp the complexity of the different problems each group faces.

Coming from a nonagricultural background also helps the Bradfords in their jobs. They believe in the importance of keeping communication open between the urban and farm communities; otherwise, misconceptions develop.

"It's important to listen to people's concerns and correct misconceptions without offending people," Bradford said. The Poultry Association provides educational seminars, educational dinners, and distributes literature to help the consumers understand manure management, dietary cholesterol, and food safety issues associated with poultry and eggs."

In their separate careers, the Bradfords say their paths sometimes cross. "I chart my own independence. I'm not just known as Andy's wife, nor is Andy known as a PennAg spouse, but both of us being in the industry has provided a wealth of information and contacts. Although we work for different industries, we often deal with some of the same issues such as animal housing, biosecurity, and crop inputs," Amy said. "It's great to be able to discuss and understand the many different agriculture issues the farming community faces. Andy and I have lots of fun discussions. It's a bonus that we can represent agriculture together."

The couple enjoy visiting with friends and helping out with shearing during the season.

"Who knows? Maybe we'll have a farm someday," Amy said. "But both of us are pretty content right now with our jobs. I think it's important for people to know that no matter what their background, they can find a career in agriculture."

ANSWER — Roy Decker writes that Wilmer Stauffer and others who are interested can propagate sweet potatoes from slips or rooted cuttings. Start them by laying a sweet potato (type of your choice) lengthwise in a bed of potting soil, keep moist and in plenty of sun. It must be warm because if it is exposed to temperatures of 50 degrees the plant goes into shock and won't grow. Normally in about three weeks, the potato will have a number of small shoots growing out the side. These can be cut out and planted in a hotbed or directly in the garden after danger of frost is past. Several mail order companies offer plants for setting out, including Gurney's Seed and Nursery Co. 110 Capital St., Yankton, S.D. 57079, and Henry Field's Seed and Nursery Co., 415 N. Burnett St., Shenandoah, Iowa 51602-001. Decker writes that growers have better success with the Georgia Jet variety in northeastern Pennsylvania.

ANSWER — R. Stoltzfus, 6039 Wanner Rd., Narvon, wanted to know where to buy "The Robe." Dale and Janie Metzler write that they operate a new and used bookstore, Crossroads Gift and Bookstore, 344 Churches Rd., Lewisburg, PA 17837. They have two copies of "The Robe" in hardcover. Call them at (570) 522-0536.

ANSWER — A reader wanted to know where to buy winter seed oats that can be sown in the fall. Thanks to Henry Schwenk, East Hampton, N.Y., who writes that two kinds of seed oats can be sown. One is regular poultry oats used for animal feed. The other is truly seed oats certified to contain no foreign matter such as various weed seeds which poultry oats do not guarantee. Oats can be purchased at any feed store or mill. Oats should not be planted later than Sept. 15 where white frost occurs around Oct. 14. Oats are killed by cold weather.

White-Tailed Deer Managers Made Their Own Job More Difficult

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — White-tailed deer management can be one of the most contentious public policy issues in Pennsylvania, and wildlife managers have only themselves — or their predecessors — to blame, according to a wildlife scientist in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences.

At the turn of the century, biologists had to convince hunters and the general public not to kill does to allow the deer population to increase. They did their job a little too well, contends Gary San Julian, professor of wildlife resources.

"What they said was true then, but today in many parts of the deer's range — and particularly in Pennsylvania — deer populations have exceeded the cultural carrying capacity. In other words, there are more deer than people want in many places."

Harvesting does through hunting is the primary tool at the disposal of deer mangers to control population size, but there is a lingering reluctance by some Keystone State hunters to kill does. To persuade them to harvest adequate numbers of does to control deer populations, San Julian says wildlife managers have had to overcome decades of education by their predecessors, generations of woodland lore and hundreds of book chapters and magazine stories.

"For many years, does could not be harvested legally," explains San Julian. "When they became legal, they were consolation prizes for hunters who could not get a buck and had to settle for a doe to put venison on the table. To many hunters, taking a doe was not thought of as 'manly' — egos got involved."

Convincing hunters that they should harvest does has been a hard sell for agencies such as the Pennsylvania Game Commission, contends San Julian, but he says hunter attitudes are changing. "Even when people see large numbers of deer and hear about deer problems, it is hard to overcome 100 years of tradition," he says.

"Today, we know that to improve the quality of our deer herds, it often is necessary to reduce populations. Hunters are helping us work on this problem. This is evidenced by how hunters have purchased antlerless hunting licenses this year. It looks like all Pennsylvania counties that offer them will sell their entire allocation.

"One buck can breed with numerous does, therefore we must harvest antlerless deer to make a substantial difference in our deer herds. Our goal should be to maintain populations at sustainable levels and to have the herd and habitat in good condition."

Hunters: Don't Panic About CWD

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Hunters should take the threat of chronic wasting disease (CWD) showing up in Pennsylvania deer seriously, according to an expert in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences, but he says they shouldn't panic.

The Pennsylvania Game Commission recently banned the importation of deer and elk into the state, and hunters shouldn't have to worry much about the disease this year, according to Gary San Julian, a wildlife resources professor. He believes there is "almost no chance" of chronic wasting disease showing up in Pennsylvania deer in the near future.

"We don't want to panic people," he says. "We are just trying to protect our herds of animals and be sure that this disease doesn't get into the state. I think that hunters need to be aware of CWD because it is in the United States, and if it does come here, it is 100 percent fatal to deer that are infected."

CWD has been detected in wild and captive herds of deer, elk and mule deer in several western states, Wisconsin and Canada. First identified in 1967, CWD is a transmissible spongiform encephalopathy that affects cervids, including all species of deer, elk and moose. It is a progressive and always fatal disease of the nervous system afflicting wild and captive cervids. Scientists theorize that CWD is caused by an unknown agent capable of transforming normal brain proteins into an abnormal form.

Currently, there is no practical way to test live animals for CWD, nor is there a vaccine. A reliable live animal test for mule deer that involves testing the tonsilles does exist, but it is not practical. That test has not proven effective for elk and white-tailed deer. Clinical signs include poor posture, lowered head and ears, uncoordinated movement, roughhair coat, weight loss, increased thirst, excessive drooling and, ultimately, death. There is no evidence so far of CWD having any effect on humans or other noncervid livestock.

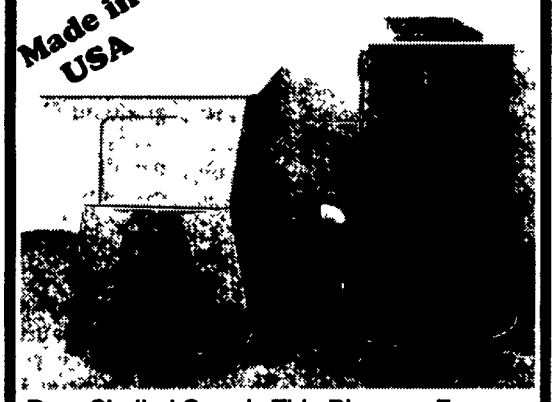
Heat with Corn!
Made in USA



Burn Shelled Corn In This Biomass Furnace

A BETTER ALTERNATIVE

The corn burning furnace has many advantages over wood and coal heat. The large storage bin holds up to 14 bushels of fuel, which is automatically fed into the combustion chamber as needed. There's no need to load the furnace several times a day. The use of corn also eliminates the bark mess, insects, splinters, and handling problems connected with the use of wood fuel, and the dust and dirt from coal. UL Approved.

Massey Ferguson 8280 Shatters World Plowing Record

ATLANTA, Ga. — The Massey Ferguson 8280 plowed through the world plowing record by plowing under 620.899 acres (251.376 ha) of French fields in only 24 hours. At 23.056 acres per hour, the 387 hp MF 8280 outdid the previous record holder, a 425hp Case IH Quadrac by nearly 4 acres per hour. The 8280 with its 17 bottoms plowed at 27.35 cm depth (about 10.5 inches) compared to 27 cm depth of the previous winner.

"Our 8280 plowed faster and even a little deeper than the previous record holder and did so with fewer horsepower," said Rene Boivin, general marketing manager, Massey Ferguson 8200 Series. "Much of the credit for the record-breaking run goes to an outstanding engine and transmission. The key to success was the integrated control system that made it possible for the operator to utilize every available horsepower to its maximum potential. That is as true in a corn field in Iowa or a wheat field in Alberta as it is in a world plowing contest in France."

The record-breaking effort was made on a 1,760-acre (800 ha) vegetable farm near the village of Sanguinet, Bordeau in southwest France and monitored by official judges from the Guinness Book of Records. Plowing started at 1 p.m. on Tuesday, March 26 and ended at 1 p.m. on Wednesday, March 27.

The MF 8280 was equipped Gregoire Besson plows, a front mounted four-furrow unit and a 13-furrow semi-mounted unit on the rear. In preliminary tests, the 17-furrow plow combination tilled a width of 27.9 ft. (8.5m.).

The dark sandy loam soil had been planted to carrots the previous year. After harvest, a single pass with a field cultivator had repaired the deep ruts left by the harvest process. To eliminate headland turns, fields were plowed in a spiral from the outside in. Even refueling was completed on the go. The only time the plows weren't in the ground and moving was when shifting from one field to the next.

The record breaking MF 8280 ran with a standard 18/6 Powershift transmission, completely unchanged for the event. Injection timing on the turbocharged SISU engine was fine tuned for the extreme 24-hour challenge. Remote sensors allowed constant monitoring of the engine, including oil and coolant temperatures. The roof mounted air filter was also modified for the extremely dusty conditions after blockages were noted in test runs.

Electronic linkage control (ELC) provided precise yet flexible control of front and rear plows to match operating conditions perfectly. The standard rear linkage control was coupled to the Front Dual Control System (optional on all MF 8200 tractors) to provide exact depth control of the front and rear units. The ELC integrated with the onboard Datatronic II monitored for and adjusted wheel slip throughout the event to ensure maximum traction, efficient fuel use and greatest overall performance.

Traction was also enhanced by Michelin new generation MACH X BIB 650-85R38 rear tires and 600-7R28 front tires. BP (British Petroleum) provided fuel and oil for the engine and rear axle. On-the-go refueling took place at regular 52.8-gallon (200-liter) intervals to maintain constant ballast. Gerard Briez, a test engineer from the Beauvais factory, where the 8280 is built, was the driver, supported by an 18-member team of technicians and engineers. The investment in equipment and manpower was extensive, but so was the return.

"This was more than just a plowing contest," explained Eric Raby, vice president, sales/North America. "The success of the MF 8280 demonstrated Massey Ferguson power, performance and reliability. More importantly, it tested every aspect of tractor, plow, tires, oil, and fuel under extreme, but controlled conditions. We took advantage of the opportunity to gather a wide range of performance data for ongoing research and development. That is where this contest will pay dividends for all our customers now and in the future."

The MF 8280 fixed frame wheeled tractor plowed 620.899 acres (251.376 ha) in 24 hours to capture the World Plowing Record.

Bio-Mycin® 200 Approved For Use In Dairy Cattle

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. — Bio-Mycin® 200 oxytetracycline injection has been approved by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration for use in lactating dairy cows. This complements its current approval for non-lactating cattle.

"Beef and dairy producers have effectively used Bio-Mycin 200 since its introduction," said David Doss, product manager for cattle pharmaceuticals. "This new clearance allows dairy producers to better deal with bacterial pneumonia, foot rot, M. bovis pinkeye and BRD complex."

The product is available in 100 mL, 250 mL and 500 mL bottles.

Ohio Study Says Heat Stress Costs Livestock Producers Billions

COLUMBUS, Ohio — The impact of heat stress on livestock costs U.S. livestock producers approximately $2.5 billion a year, as much as 50 percent of their net farm income, according to a recent Ohio State University study.

Ohio State University Extension dairy specialist Normand St-Pierre and colleagues analyzed over 250 national journal papers on the nutritional, environmental and physiological impacts of heat stress on livestock in an attempt to quantify the economic impact heat stress has on the commercial animal production industry.

"The results of the study gives producers an opportunity to find more efficient cooling systems for their livestock," said St-Pierre. "Even if every farmer in the United States used the best cooling system for his operation, we'd only be able to decrease that cost by a third. Some of these systems are not very energy efficient."

Heat stress, brought about by a combination of temperature, humidity and solar radiation, is one of the leading causes behind livestock health problems, decreased feed intake, negative reproductive impacts and increased mortality, all of which lead to a decrease in production.

Researchers combined the heat stress threshold of 10 animal classes with average minimum and maximum temperature and humidity from 260 weather stations across the country to calculate a temperature humidity index (THI) — a chart where the level of heat stress for all livestock species in every state can be calculated on a daily basis. The animal classes studied included milking cows, heifers, yearlings, beef cows, finishing cattle, sows, feeder hogs, chicken layers, chicken broilers and turkeys.

Become A 'Quester'

Elizabeth Jessie Bardens founded the Quester organization in 1944. Like many other non-profit organizations, the group faces reduced membership due to age and death. New members are needed to continue preservation efforts.

PHILADELPHIA — People who share a love for antiques, a desire to learn more about them, and preserve them for future generations can join an organization called The Questers.

The Questers, an international organization, was founded in 1944 by Elizabeth Jessie Bardens. The Questers grew to include about 16,000 members in 882 chapters across the U.S. and Canada.

Individual chapters vary. The programs focus on the interests of the members. Some groups have speakers who share their knowledge about different aspects pertaining to antiques or history, members take trips to historic sites, antique shows, and tour museums.

A quarterly publication is sent to members, and an annual convention is conducted in the spring at different sites. This year's annual convention was in Sommerset, N.J.

"The Questers of Pennsylvania have contributed dramatically both in time and outright grants to various historic sites and museums throughout the state," said Martin Mikelberg, publicity chairman for the state organization.

"People who belong to this organization are interested in historic preservation, antiques, and have curiosity, enthusiasm, and imagination."

It's also a great way to meet interesting people. Mikelberg enjoys hearing talks by local experts, seeing personal collections of members, and studying papers or seeing video presentations from Quester headquarters.

In addition to preservation and restoration projects, the International Questers award two annual scholarships to graduate students in historic preservation and an annual graduate fellowship in art conservation.

Annual dues and contributions benefit the scholarship program.

Membership is declining because many of the original members are dying or aged. Mikelberg believes that many people would be interested in joining Questers if they knew about the organization.

Mikelberg is retired and sells many of the items that he and his wife have collected on eBay. The purses photographed on this page are two of the items, Mikelberg donated to Questers.

"I had enough experience in antiques to realize the purses were valuable and could easily be sold if marketed correctly," Mikelberg said.

He took digital photographs of the purses and placed them on eBay. the one purse listed at a starting bid of $150 with a reserve of $200, and an instant buy of $250. Four days later the purse was purchased using the Instant Buy Option.

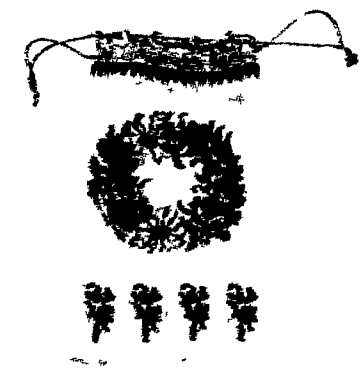
"The coffers of the Pennsylvania Questers are now enriched by the proceeds," Mikelberg said.

He only sells objects for Pennsylvania Questers because all proceeds are plowed back into restoring and preserving historical sites in the state's communities.

Items donated to the Pennsylvania Questers can be deducted for income tax purposes. Questers have 501C status as a nonprofit charity organization.

National headquarters of the Questers is located in a historically certified federal period brick house at 210 S. Quince St., Philadelphia.

To learn more about Questers, write to the national headquarters to find a chapter in your area.



These 19th century purses were donated to the Questers and sold for the proceeds to help the organization's efforts to restore and preserve historical Pennsylvania sites.

Thimble Collector Tells Fascinating History

My name is Barbara. I'm a digitabulist — a thimble collector.

Thimbles have been one of mankind's most basic tools. It has many more uses than simply pushing a needle through fabric.

After World War I they became a popular advertising medium. In the 1930s and 1940s, red topped thimbles caught people's attention.

Early school teachers used "dames thimbles" to enforce discipline when she knocked the unruly student on the top of the head with her thimbled-finger (called thimble knocking).

I wonder what would happen if teachers tried that in today's classroom!

The term "thimble knocking" was also used by ladies of the evening they would use a thimble on their finger to knock on the window glass in order to attract male attention.

During the 1800s, a thimble was used as a "spirit measure," thus the term "only a thimbleful."

During Word War I, thimbles also became a type of currency. It breaks my heart to relay this story, but in England 350,000 to 400,000 sterling thimbles were donated and melted down in order to buy much needed hospital equipment.

In Europe, thimbles are given as confirmation gifts to young ladies as a start for their hope chests. A sandalwood thimble left in the sewing basket will discourage moths.

In 1909 an Englishman invented the rheumatism thimble it was made of silver, steel, zinc and copper which set up a galvanic reaction on moist fingers. And I'm sure the innovative mind of today can think of many more uses for the ordinary thimble.

Do you know the difference between an accumulator and a collector? The accumulator collects for the sheer pleasure of owing an item. The collector, on the other hand, wants to know the who, the what, the where, the why and the how of the item.

The simple thimble has its origin as a needle pusher in early civilization; crudely made of stone, bronze, bone or ivory, they were used with crude needles to fasten animal skins together, making protective clothing. Since that time, thimbles have been made of every material known to man...from 14K gold to a real carrot!

During the late 16th century to the early 20th century, thimbles were valued as objects of art. They were also used as love tokens during Victorian times, as society discouraged personal gifts of any nature between men and women. Many thimbles were given as engagement gifts, with those of sterling or gold most popular. When the couple married, the bottom part of the thimble could be cut off and used as the new wife's wedding band.

A woman's social status was often illustrated by her thimble: Did the woman of the house have free time to do the fine needlework of the day? Was she a servant with a common base metal thimble? Was she a woman of position and wealth with a gold or silver thimble sometimes adorned with gemstones?

Queen Elizabeth I used to give her ladies in waiting a thimble. Queen Anne and Queen Victoria followed this practice. In fact, Queen Victoria was a firm believer that "idle hands have need of needle and thread."

The 19th century became the "golden age" of thimbles when the industrial revolution brought silver and gold thimbles with machine made knurling and die-stamped designs, within the reach of the middle class.

Paul Revere, a patriot and master silversmith, made a gold thimble for his daughter, Maria. Today, it is on display at the Boston Museum of Fine Arts.

There have been historical contributions from the lowly thimble. In 1856 Mr. Latimer Clark was testing the first transatlantic cable. After several failed attempts, he borrowed a thimble from Emily Fitzgerald, added a small about of acid and zinc and created a miniature electric cell. This thimble generated enough current to send a signal across 3,700miles in a second. Thus the design of that thimble became known as the "Atlantic Cable" thimble.

For hundreds of years, thimbles have marked historical events. Known as "commemoratives," thimbles have been produced to mark such events as: the meeting of the east and west railroad known as the Golden Spike thimbles; the witch hunts in Massachusetts brought out the Salem Witch thimble; the Columbian Exposition as well as the Pan-American Exposition had thimbles struck to commemorate their events. And companion sewing and non-sewing pieces were often developed with the same theme. There are even museums dedicated strictly to sewing items: Reddītch Ēnglānd has a needle museum and Kreglingen Germany has a thimble museum.

During the mid to late 20th century, thimbles were becoming obsolete but quaint tools of yesteryear. Only during the last 20-30 years has there been any interest in their history or social significance.

So how did I get started collecting thimbles? My paternal grandmother was a seamstress. My maternal grandmother was a milliner (hat maker) as well as a seamstressso the allure of the thimble must have been passed down to me through them. On my 29th birthday, my mother gave me a porcelain-advertising thimble. I loved it, wondered about the who, the what, the where, the why and the when of it, and now my collection of over 1,400 thimbles are enhanced by other antique sewing tools as well.

Collectors Discovering Globes, Scientific Instruments

As fascination continues to grow for scientific antiques, more are coming to market.

In the past only museums were auction bidders when they made an occasional auction appearance. Today, the generation that works and plays with computers has turned to collecting examples of early scientific discoveries. Their growing popularity has led Skinner Auctions in Boston to hold specialized auctions.

Globes are among the most popular, since they can be decorative as well as historic.

Consider that globe bases were made in the popular furniture styles of the day; Sheraton to late victorian.

Scientific antiques, such as globes, were never made in quantity. A pair of globes, in early 19th century America were as expensive as a sofa made by Duncan Phyfe. These days the earliest and rarest globes can cost in the thousands, but lesser examples can be had at auction for a few hundred dollars. You may be surprised that that are many types that include terrestrial and celestrial. Some are as small as three inches high.

The golden age of globes is before 1840 when they were printed by hand. They were ever changing from the late 18th to 19th centuries, major years of geographical and celestrial discovery and change. Equally collectible are early catalogues advertising globes and other scientific instruments. A rarity would be the catalogue printed in 1848 by Benjamin Pike of New York, complete with drawings.

CLUES: Have you passed up a potentially antique globe because it appeared to be 20th century? When examining globes, remember that they were updated.

Therefore, changes were periodically made on their papers, called "gores." These came in sets of 12 and were in spherical shapes. They were pasted over the old data and lacquered. There may be a difference between the dates on the terrestrial and celestrial parts.

Since there were more geographic than heavenly changes, the date on the terrestrial part will tell you the age.

Globes made in the 18th and 19th centuries had a core of wood, covered with plaster.

The data was printed from engraved plates, pasted on the plaster and painted with water colors then varnished.

There are globe novelties to add to a collection. They include pocket globes. These measure from 2½- to 3-inches. The celestrial "gores" were placed inside.

For beginning collectors there are 20th century globes, that are going up in value and still priced in the hundreds. Even the mass produced school globes of the 19th to mid-20th century are considered collectible.

If globes aren't of interest, consider rare early, scientific instruments. They were often finely engraved with the name of the maker and date. Most desirable would be those made of various metals from bronze to silver. Some were inlaid with silver.

Great care was used not only in the calibration of measurements and angles but in their decoration.

Since every country made scientific instruments, they can be found anywhere.

However, collectors advise that the finest are sold either by a few specialist dealers in London and Paris. Best would be to make a discovery at an estate sale.

The smaller astronomical and surveying instruments offer affordable opportunities for collectors. A pocket sextant, late 19th century could be bought at auction for $350-450.

A 19th century pocket sundial could have an auction price of $500 or more.

Research is a must. Keep in mind that there are still many discoveries awaiting. Skinner auction catalogs are a starting point for possibilities and prices. On line: www.skinner.com. Garst Seed Company Announces New Corn Hybrids

SLATER, Iowa — Garst Seed Company announces its new corn hybrids for the 2003 crop year.

This year the company is bringing to market 29 all-new, top-performing corn hybrids, including 13 new Roundup Ready® hybrids and seven YieldGard® Corn Borer (YGI) hybrids, including three YieldGard® Corn Borer and Roundup Ready® multiple-trait or G-Stac hybrids. The new offerings also include 12 new conventional plus IT hybrids across the early, midseason and full-season ranges.

"We continue to develop all-new hybrids based upon the innovation of our breeders and researchers and our extensive base of proprietary corn genetics," said Jeff Sernett, corn product manager for Garst. "However, with our 'best products' strategy, we don't introduce new products unless they are significantly better than the hybrids they are targeted to replace or unless they provide new solutions customers are demanding."

This best products philosophy also means that Garst customers can be assured that the new hybrids they are considering have been through multiple years of development, testing, and in-field evaluations and trials.

SE8 In Stock

The Rhino® SE8 is an economical rotary mower designed to help maintain larger acreages of grass, weeds, stalks, or material up to 1" in diameter.

The streamlined, close-coupled design allows economical operation on tractors as small as 30 horsepower on the SE8. The 85 HP center gearbox and 60 HP outboard gearboxes are protected from sudden shockloads by a slip clutch on the main driveline and torque dampeners on the side driveshafts. Pan blade carriers help the unit glide over field obstacles and updraft blades with a 4" blade overlap provide a clean cut.

Setting Standards For Performance and Durability!

Pull-Type

The pull-type SE10 requires only a 45 HP (min.) tractor for economical, wide-cut mowing. A hydraulic cylinder or ratchet lift screw is available for raising and lowering the mower. A spring shock absorber is optional to help cushion shockloads to the mainframe when operating in rough terrain. (Unit shown with optional chain guards. Deflectors are standard.)

The Servis® 2160 Hydraulic Boom Rotary Cutter from Servis-Rhino® is designed for agricultural applications including cutting grass, weeds, and material up to 2" in diameter on an intermittent basis

With a maximum vertical reach of 22'6" and 190 degrees of head movement, the 2160 is ideal for trimming back brush up to 2" in diameter along fence rows or edges of open fields and other hard-to-reach areas The design of the boom arm allows the 2160 to mow on the opposite side of low profile fences for easier fence row cleanup

Narrow Transport Width. The 2160 can be folded into a transport width of 113" for easier travel on roads and through gates Replaceable, full-length skid shoes are standard to help prevent wear to the deck mainframe The 3/16" pan blade carrier is reinforced with a 3/4" steel plate in the bottom of the pan for added strength and momentum The deck side skirts are 1/4" x 9-1/4" to handle large volumes of material Front and rear rubber safety deflectors are standard equipment.

Reach Your Full Yield Potential

With The Case-IH 1200 Pivot Transport Planters from Hoober

The Case-IH 1200 Planters are designed to help you optimize the following Planting Productivity objectives:

Operational Timeliness

Delayed planting can dramatically affect yields. The Case-IH 1200 Planters allow you to run at higher ground speeds and increase productivity without compromising accuracy.

Seed Bed Conditions

Poor seed-to-soil contact can result in uneven germination and emergence, which can reduce corn yields by 10 to 20% (Purdue University). The Case-IH 1200 Planters give your seed the chance to deliver full yield potential.

Seed Placement Accuracy

The Advanced Seed Meter (ASM) utilizes a larger diameter disc that turns slowly and gives a more accurate and consistent seed drop. The Case-IH 1200 Planters also deliver superior spacing with all seed sizes.

- 12 Row and 16 Row Configurations
- Advanced Seed Meter Technology (ASM)
- Trailing, Pivot Transport Frame
- Multiple Seed Varieties
- Central Fill Seed Hopper
- Liquid Fertilizer
- Herbicide/Insecticide
- Variable Rate Hydraulic Drive

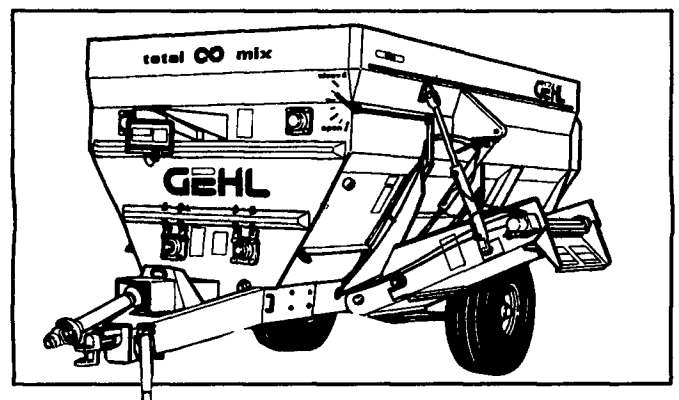
YOUR LIVESTOCK IMPLEMENT LINE

TMR "Total Mix" Mixer Feeders



"Total Mix" TMR mixer feeders let you mix more long-stemmed hay into your ration - up to 30% by weight depending on hay type and moisture content.

- "Hay - slicer auger" - Incorporates knife assemblies into the two bottom augers.
- Better mixing action - Four-auger design creates a double figure - 8 mixing pattern for fast and complete mixing of all feed ingredients.
- Energy efficient - Planetary drive system requires less horsepower.
- Built to last - Patented star couplers absorb shock loads by allowing the bottom augers to flex, providing long service life.
- Five sizes - 150 to 455 cubic feet capacities.

INTRODUCING THE WHITE 8000 SERIES PLANTERS

You've done your research, prepared your field, and picked the perfect seed variety. Now plant that perfect row, with the 8000 Series planter from White With 49 models to match your needs, they're packed with features that save time and plant 4 to 31 rows of corn or soybeans with unmatched precision. The 8000 Series features an improved seed meter design for outstanding accuracy with a wider variety of seed sizes. And standard walking beam gauge wheels along with increased planting depth range of ½ inch to 4 inches give superior depth control over larger surface irregularities. Select models feature "on-the-go" seed rate adjustment from your tractor cab. FlexFrame designs range from 30' to 60' for an "acre-eater" performance from one end of your field to the other.

It's time to plant the perfect row. Stop by your White Planter Dealer today and get it right with WHITE.

Knight Honors Hoober Inc. For Outstanding Sales

MCALISTERVILLE (Juniata Co.) — Knight Manufacturing Corp of Brodhead, Wis. has presented Hoober Inc. with an award for its continuing outstanding sales efforts.

Knight has been building spreaders since 1949 and is one of the country's leading manufacturers of Reel Auggie TMR mixers, Commercial SDL Feedlot and dairy mixers, Verti-Maxx vertical TMR mixers, Botec 4-auger TMR mixers, Pro twin slinger side discharge spreaders, and box spreaders for agricultural and commercial/industrial use.

"It's really great to be able to supply the most innovative products in the industry like the mixers and spreaders in the Knight line," said Brad Hershey, Hoober's McAlisterville location store manager. "Our goal is to help our customers achieve maximum nutrient management goals."

Jerry Smith, territory manager for Knight Manufacturing Corp., is shown awarding Brad Hershey of Hoober Inc., McAlisterville, with a dealer sales plaque for outstanding sales efforts.

Hoober also has locations in Intercourse, Middletown, Del. and Seaford, Del. They offer multiple lines of construction, agricultural and grounds care equipment. The Middletown, Del. store is also an authorized Knight dealer.

Deer Creek Equipment Moves Soil

OXFORD (Chester Co.) — In 1997, Deer Creek Equipment saw an opportunity to expand its business into the earth-moving business.

The Deere tractors, with their powershift transmissions and pull scrapers, are an affordable alternative to move dirt. The combination provides the contractors a very cost-effective means to do excavation. Most contractors say that they are able to reduce their cost per yard by one-half and some say by as much as two-thirds.

Deer Creek's tractor/scraper specialist Gary Sorrelle has had extensive training on this product. Sorrelle has been to factory training as well as "driver seat training" and can help match the correct package to each operation. "Deere offers both wheel tractors as well as track machines, in horsepowers up to 450. Deer Creek sells pans from five cubic yards to 24 cubic yards. We can tailor a package for any size contractor," he said.

Deer Creek Equipment sells John Deere scrapers as well as the Miskin brand of scrapers. Pull scrapers come in two configurations — ejector and carryall. "We have access to both types and each one has its advantages. The trick is to match the right one for the job," Sorrelle said.

The tractor/scraper business is a demanding business and requires a committed dealer to support the product. Deer Creek is such a dealer. They offer their customers access to service and parts 24 hours a day and seven days a week. They also have a rental program available. This provides machines available for those emergency situations.

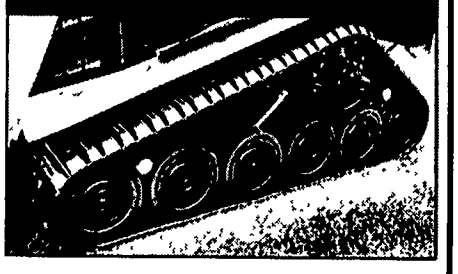
The RC•50, R•50 and RC•30 are an advanced breed of compact machine - the All Surface Loader

Twenty-four rubber wheels spread machine weight over a large ground contact area, so these machines exert very low ground pressure - ideal on landscapes or soft conditions.



Compact size and revolutionary rubber-track undercarriage allows you to outwork traditional equipment in almost any terrain or application. The R-Series All Surface Loaders are at home in tough excavating jobs as well as on sensitive terrains such as lawns and asphalt.

Add the full range of versatile attachments, easy operation, and rugged uni-body construction for a one-machine work force ready to tackle most any job and most any ground condition.

What's against soft paint?

In metal roofing and siding some manufacturers use soft pliable paint to prevent cracks. The disadvantage with softer paint is that it scratches so easy. Handling during erection, flying debris during storms, children playing against it, etc. can easily scratch softer paint. Scratches on softer paints tend to rust prematurely. Everlast heat forms to prevent this. Ask our competition if they heat form. It's important.

PA farmers have great hay crops with South Dakota alfalfa seed. Painterland Farms, Westfield, PA, John Painter said "The Trask's seed grew extremely well. We recommend it to anyone. It is real leafy and yielded as well as any of the high priced name brand seeds. It cost 40% as much. We planted 294 acres. We intend to plant more this spring. It was exceptionally winter hardy and resisted frost damage. We are very pleased.

Join the numerous farmers in the PA/NY area harvesting superb alfalfa from South Dakota seed
